KING KELLY.

An Entertaining Interview With John, the Politician.

The Hand that Gov. Cleveland Took in the Defeat of Senator Grady—Speculation as to the Probable Candidates for President—He will Support Tilden.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, November 2.—The special dispatch from Albany published in the World yesterday, containing a virtual denial from Gov. Cleveland of the allegation that he had interfered in New York city politics, or that he had been especially instrumental in the defeat of Senator Grady for renomination, has caused much comment among politicians in this city. In striking contrast to the Governor's statement a letter was shown to a reporter yesterday, emanating from the executive chamber, and in the Governor's handwriting. It is dated October 20, 1883, and reads as follows:

"It is not without hesitation that I write this. I have determined to do so, however, because I see no reason why I should not be entirely frank with you. I am anxious that Mr. Grady should not be returned to the next Senate.

I DO NOT WISH TO CONCEAL

the fact that my personal comfort and satisfaction are involved in this matter. But I know that good legislation, based upon a pure desire to promote the interests of the people and the improvement of legislative methods are also deeply involved. I forbear to write in detail of the other considerations I have in relation to the welfare of the party and the approval to be secured by a change for the better in the character of its representatives. These things will occur to you without suggestion from me.

"Yours very truly.

[Signed] "GROVER CLEVELAND."

Mr. John Kelly was found yesterday in his office at No. 24 Park row, looking over a vast pile of correspondence, political and otherwise. Outside waited patiently a large number of Aldermen and others anxious to get a word with the Tammany leader. When Mr. Kelly was shown the Governor's denial he exclaimed with emphatic surprise: "That's very strange; very strange. Is this perfectly reliable?" On being informed that it was, he said:

"Well, I am free to say that all the disaffection existing in the Democratic party today in this county has its root and center in the brain of the executive. He has towards Senator Grady to get the better of his judgment, and yet Grady has done nothing to merit such a spirit of revenge on the part of the Governor. Senator Grady's reply to the Governor's message, bringing the Senate to task for failing to confirm his nominations for Harbor Masters, Port Wardens and Commissioner of Emigration, just before the adjournment of the last session, was dignified, and his grounds for the statements uttered at the time were, to my mind, well taken."

"D you not think that the Governor has gone beyond the limits of his jurisdiction in attempting to dictate to local politicians whom they shall not nominate for office?"

"I most certainly do. The Governor has no right to interfere in local politics. He may not have been personally at work in this city against the renomination of Grady, but it is an indisputable fact that he, by messages or otherwise, in league with the County Democracy, it might be said, succeeded in putting 'Tim' Campbell, an inferior man, in the place of Grady. The Governor has made a grave mistake, and one which he will sooner or later deeply regret. If defeat should result it may be laid at the Governor's door. But myself. I am confident that we shall be able to carry at least five, and probably six, of the Senatorial Districts in the county. This is conceding to the Republicans the Eighth, which elected Browning, a Democrat, two years ago."

"Do you consider the election of the State ticket probable?"

"Yes. It is a strong one and I consider a victory for it assured. It must be elected. It's defeat would seriously injure our chances for the Presidency in 1884. We must have New York to get it. If we are defeated, the people who did so much to secure our triumph a year ago will become disheartened, I fear, and will not turn out at the polls in the greater contest."

"Who is to be the next President?"

"A Democrat. I don't know who, but it's our turn now and our chance."

"Are you in favor of the old ticket?"

"I have no preference. I shall work for any man that the party may choose to nominate.

IF IT BE TILDEN,

I shall do my utmost to secure his election. If it be MacDonald, Holman or any other Democrat, he will have my unqualified support. I am done with chaperoning candidates. Whoever we nominate, I feel confident we can and will elect him. The Republicans are demoralized, and we are united. This is our advantage."

"Should Tilden be nominated, do you think he would run?"

"I do. I hardly think he would make the active canvass he did in 1876, however: his health and age would not permit that, I should think. In my opinion the Democratic candidate has not been named yet."

"Do you think President Arthur will be renominated?"

"I hardly think he will, and should be surprised if he is. The Republicans can secure a much stronger man than he—Sherman, for instance. Arthur has been too much identified with the Stalwart faction of the party. I fear that the Halfbreeds, should he be nominated, would either work against him or keep out of the canvass. The Stalwarts of course would do all in their power to secure his re-election. In my opinion a man who has not been identified with either faction to the exclusion of the other. It remains to be seen whether a man with the clean record which Sherman possesses has been connected with any one wing of the party exclusively. The tide is coming our way, however, and it seems that with proper care and management victory is ours for a certainty in 1884.

THE REPUBLICANS WILL NOMINATE

HURT ON A HUNT.

An Unfortunate Accident—Head Foremost into a Barbed Wire Fence.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., November 2.—There was another serious accident at the meet of the Meadow Brook here to-day. Mr. Peter F. Collier, the New York publisher, was thrown off his horse and, it is believed, severely injured in the face and back. The hunt started promptly at 3:30 p. m. from the kennel, after the usual anise-seed bag. About twenty-five gentlemen were mounted, among whom were Mr. August Belmont, jr., Mr. Stanley Mortimer, Mr. O. S. Hands, the gentleman who was injured, and two ladies, Miss Oelricks and Miss Purdy. The gentlemen were all attired in the regulation white breeches, lobster coats and top boots. The ladies wore natty riding costumes, and did not seem in the least intimidated by the accident which happened to Miss Bird at the Monday meet. After the man who drags the anise-seed bag along at his heels

HAD BEEN GIVEN A FAIR START

the huntsman wound his horn, the pack of hounds was loosened, and horses and riders dashed off on the tract with a merry "Where away." Mr. Collier, who rode a very spirited horse, took a fence 5 feet 9 inches gallantly, but a few yards further off came to a wire fence which was covered with brush. The horse did not see it until too late to make an effective jump. Its forefeet struck the barbed wire, and it rolled over, throwing its rider face foremost to the ground. The animal got on its legs again apparently uninjured, but it was some moments before Mr. Collier could rise from the ground. He was bleeding from a severe cut across the bridge of the nose, and his lips were contused and bleeding. His back pained greatly, though he could not tell whether he had injured it to-day, or whether his present fall had which he had received in a similar accident about a year ago. The hunt for the anise-seed bag was temporarily suspended, and the gentlemen rode up, with proffers of assistance to their injured comrade. He declined them, however, and remounting his horse, rode slowly back to Garden City, from which place he had rode out to the meet. He was advised to put himself under medical treatment, but preferred waiting until he got to New York, for which place he left on the afternoon train. This is the third accident which has happened to a Meadow Brook hunt since the season opened on September 1 last. Besides the two mentioned, Miss Payne was hurt, fortunately but slightly, at the meet two weeks ago last Saturday. Both Mr. Griswold and Miss Griswold were injured three weeks ago at the Queen's County hunt; Mr. Griswold so severely that he has not yet been ABLE TO LEAVE HIS ROOM.

The injuries to Mrs. August Belmont, jr., and her groom were not sustained at a hunt. They were riding in a dog cart yesterday, when the wheel struck the stump of a tree, breaking the shaft. The horse reared and upset the vehicle, throwing Mrs. Belmont and the groom out on the ground. Mrs. Belmont received a severe cut on the head and was otherwise bruised, but she was able to sit up in the parlor to-day. There has been much needless alarm concerning Miss Bird. Her horse at the Monday meeting struck the top railing of a fence with his fore feet and threw her. She was stunned for a moment, but was able to ride with the others to the house of Mr. Belmont, whose guest she is. It was not found necessary even to call in a physician or to notify her family in New York. She was out riding in the village to-day and showed no traces of any injuries.

AN ABDUCTED JEWELER.

Thomas Hoag Turns Up in London—A Friendly Tip.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, November 2.—Thomas Hoag, the Broadway jeweler, returned yesterday after his long absence, and threw open the doors of his store. On the night of September 4, he says, as he was sitting on the door step a man addressed him in a familiar manner. They talked awhile and the stranger proposed a drink and they repaired to a saloon across the street. The stranger then asked him to visit another saloon, where they had another glass of beer. At this stage his mind became blank and he remembered nothing until he found himself in London three weeks later in a boarding-house, No. 18 Highgate street. The people in the house told him that he had been brought there by a gentleman whose description tallied exactly with the stranger whom he met in the city.

HIS GOLD WATCH,

a historical time-piece valued at $1,000, was gone, although his diamonds and money were still in his possession. He reported the case to the police and looked about to see if he could find some one with whom he was acquainted. While at the American Exchange he heard that his mother, who resides in Prescott, Canada. was prostrated with grief over his disappearance, and he at once took passage on the steamer Canada for this country. On the way she broke her shaft and was obliged to make for St. Johns, for repair. From there and stayed there until she recovered, which was a few days ago, and at once proceeded to New York to attend to his business, which he intends to continue. When asked who the stranger could be and what the abduction was intended for he answered that he had one enemy who swore to do him harm, and if he could possibly fasten the crime upon him he would spare no effort to bring him to justice.

HE VISITED HIS MOTHER,

Dissatisfied Knights Templar.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., November 2.—Speaking of the threatened break in the Masonic fraternity in this Sate, A. G. Cooke, Commander-in-Chief of the Central City Consistory, said: "I am convinced that the great bulk of the body of Masons which meets every year is a disadvantage which could be overcome by a division, and I think that more than dissension is at the bottom of the new movement for a separation."

Commander John W. Sherman, of the Central City Commandery, Knights Templar, said: "Three years ago, at Ithaca, it became evident that the New York City commanderies desired to carry off all the most prominent offices, and I told them then and there that such greed would not be tolerated by the commanderies in the interior, who think they have as much right to recognition as the New York delegations. It is proper that New York Commanderies should hold a share of the best offices, yet we cannot acquiesce in their monopolizing them."

SUDDENLY LAPPED UP.

The Town of Willoughby, Ohio, Destroyed by Fire—The Losers.

CLEVELAND, November 2.—At 1 o'clock this morning a fire started in the new barn of a hotel and destroyed a large part of the village of Willoughby, twenty miles east of here. A high wind increased the force of the flames, which consumed about twenty stores, dwellings, sheds and barns on Spalding and Erie streets, also cremating six horses and one span of mules. The principal buildings destroyed were A. W. Gunn's and Kennedy & Sons' storehouse and hardware store; H. C. Dawson, barbershop; M. Higgins, saloon; S. Fowles, shoe store; Gibbons & Bros., dry goods; Barnes Bros., wall paper and paints; M. F. Clark, drugs; H. F. Smith, jewelry; Mrs. Berthelmew, millinery; Dan Haggart, marble works. The entire population turned out and formed a bucket brigade, but their efforts were futile, because the gale swept the flames with restless fury until every frame structure in its course was in ashes. The conflagration was finally checked by the Bond block, in which is a bank, an opera house and offices. The brick walls of this block proved a successful barrier against the further spread of the fire, though for a time it was feared the whole town would be destroyed. The losses will be very heavy, notwithstanding the fact that the citizens, finding it useless to fight the flames with buckets of water, turned their attention to saving property from the buildings in danger of burning. In several instances the blaze lapped up an entire house so suddenly that nothing was saved.

FIFTY FEET DOWN.

A Lightning Express Train Ditched in Iowa—Engineer Killed.

CLARINDA, IOWA, November 2.—The "Cannon Ball" train over the Humiston & Shenandoah Road, going East, was wrecked Wednesday night at the trestle-work over the West Fork River, five miles east of Shenandoah. The engine, baggage car and one coach rolled down an embankment fifty feet. The Pullman sleeper remained on the track. A. B. Worden, the engineer, was killed and the fireman and express messenger seriously injured. The accident is ascribed to the displacement of a rail west of the bridge by train-wreckers for the purpose of robbery.

Blank Resignations and Their Infamous Holders Come Under the Lash.

A Full Copy of the Report and of the Indictments for Conspiracy—The Grand Jurors' Proceedings in the Criminal Court—Thomas B. Harvey Appointed Circuit Attorney During Mr. Harris' Absence.

About twenty lawyers, reporters and hangers-on sat around in the inclosure in the Criminal Court to-day waiting for the expected report of the Grand Jury. The court had taken a recess until half past twelve, but when that hour arrived there was a hitch in the proceedings, as the Jury did not appear. The crowd amused itself talking and smoking for nearly an hour. At twenty minutes past 1 Judge Van Wagoner stepped from his private office, Deputy Sheriff Rawley rapped for order, and the waiting lawyers and reporters began to look expectant. The Judge took his seat and said: "Throw up the windows, Sheriff, and get out some of this smoke!" Then he asked, "Are the jury ready?" and there being a negative response from Clerk Finney, the Judge retired to his office again, requesting that he be called when the jury appeared. In ten minutes afterward Assistant Circuit Attorney Sullivan entered the rear door to the left, Clerk Finney stood up at his desk, and almost at the same moment Judge Van Wagoner entered and took his seat. On the heels of Assistant Sullivan came the Grand Jury men in line, headed by Foreman Richeson holding in his hand a package of manuscripts. Judge Van Wagoner requested the Sheriff to call the roll, which was done. The Judge then turned to the jury and said: "Has the Grand Jury anything to communicate to the Court?"

FOREMAN RICHESON

rose from his chair and answered: "On behalf of myself and fellow jurymen, I wish to say that we have attended to all business to which our attention has been called, except the police matter, and that we have prosecuted as far as possible." Foreman Richeson then handed the report of the jury and a batch of indictments to the Judge. The enclosure was by this time well filled with interested listeners apparently on the look out for startling developments. They were disappointed, however, for Judge Van Wagoner quietly glanced over the indictments to see that everything was in ship shape order and turned them over to Clerk Finney. The Judge then picked up the report of the Grand Jury, and, leaning back in his chair, carefully read it through, to himself, and turned it also over to the clerk. Then turning to the Grand Jury again

HE SAID:

"The court takes cognizance of the fact that you have had but a brief period to do the work which has been done, and that in your indictments the court is satisfied you have diligently, faithfully and earnestly labored for the good of this community. The court has seen your report, and now says that your requests shall be obeyed. I have nothing further to say, except that in my duty as Judge of this court, and in behalf of the community and in the interest of justice I thank you, and trust that you may return to your homes and enjoy the peace and comfort you have done so much to bring about."

The Report.

The report of the Grand Jury read as follows:

To the Hon. Garrett S. Van Wagoner, Judge of the St. Louis Criminal Court:

SIR—The Grand Jury having reached the limitation provided by law for its term of service, respectfully submit to the court the following as their final report. Owing to want of time and necessary attention to matters of more immediate importance, we have been unable to visit any of the city institutions except the jail, which we found properly conducted and in good condition. A large portion of our time and labor has been devoted to the investigation of the affairs of the Board of Police Commissioners of the City of St. Louis, and to the methods of appointment and removal of its members.

A CORRUPT COMBINATION,

composed of unprincipled and notorious persons, and certain persons holding offices of the State under appointment of the Governor, has for a considerable time existed for the purpose of unlawfully controlling and using the police force of this city in the promotion and continuance of gambling and lotteries, and for other unlawful purposes.

THE MEMBERS OF THIS COMBINATION, outside of those belonging to the Police Board, have possessed and exercised such an influence upon its members belonging to the Board that they have in many important instances dictated and controlled the policy of the board. These Commissioners, subject to the corrupt influence and power, have latterly constituted a majority of the Board, and, by either willing or forced submission to the commands and behests of the combination, have done or permitted to be done acts which must have been contrary to their honest and upright judgment.

THE LATE CHIEF OF POLICE, removed from his office without apparent cause, has been solicited by members of this combination to permit the maintenance of fraudulent schemes and practices in open and direct violation of law. He has been commanded to bestow upon individuals, against his active remonstrance, privileges which rightly belong to none. He has been compelled to proceed from one house of prostitution to another, and assure the inmates that they would not be interfered with in their evil and unlawful business.

MEMBERS OF THE POLICE FORCE

have been suspended or removed at the suggestion or request of members of the corrupt combination, irrespective of any consideration as to their efficiency, and worthless and inefficient officers have by the same powers been retained. The officers and members of the force, through like immoral and unlawful influences, have been hampered and restricted in the honest and faithful performance of their duty.

Comment upon such practices is unnecessary. Upon the vigorous and unyielding enforcement of the law, in which the police force is an important factor, rest the safety and security of the lives and property, and in many cases the liberty, of the citizens of this community, and of those who visit our city.

WE ARE CONVINCED that the present method of appointing Police Commissioners for this city is erroneous, and, as late developments have shown, has been productive of great and lasting evil to this city and the State of Missouri.

We, therefore, earnestly recommend that the law vesting in the Governor the appointment of Police Commissioners for this city be repealed, and that the office be either made elective or that the power of appointment be conferred upon the Mayor of the city, subject to the advice and consent of the Municipal Assembly, or that it be vested in the Circuit Judges of this city.

Contemporary with the inauguration of the present Governor of the State, there was instituted by him the practice of demanding and requiring of persons selected by him as Police Commissioners of this city, prior to their appointments, blank resignations of their office.

have in several instances been given, and have been held and retained by evil-designing persons, members of the combination, solely for fraudulent and unlawful purposes, and in the furtherance of crime. These resignations could not have been required for any lawful and proper use. The power is, by law, plainly written upon the statute books, vested in the Governor, to remove at any time a commissioner who is unfaithful to his trust.

These resignations have been used through fear of exposure on the part of the members indiscreet enough to give them, or otherwise to shape and control the actions and policy of members of the board, and have served the purpose for which they were intended, viz: To prevent the honest and conscientious discharge of duty by members of the Board and to further unlawful objects. The character and standing of the Commissioner, concerning which the Governor has ample time and means to deliberate upon and consider; the full and solemn oath taken by the Commissioner for the faithful discharge of his duties, together with the statutory power lodged in the Governor to remove him at any time for misconduct, should be sufficient to insure an honest administration of his office.

We have been

for which these resignations have been asked and given. And in view of the use to which they have been put, and the infamous character of those who have been permitted to hold them, the practice of requiring them must be unequivocally condemned.

During the course of our investigation we have had occasion to examine into the manner in which

by the executive to persons convicted of felonies in the Criminal Court of this city. Pardons have been granted to many persons convicted of felonies—not upon doubtful or untruthful testimony, or by partial or prejudiced juries, but upon their self-confession, after advising with counsel of the highest ability.

These self-confessed felons had, for many years prior to their conviction for the offences of which they were pardoned, openly and defiantly violated the law, which during these years made these offenses mere misdemeanors. Though often convicted, during that time, of misdemeanors, no substantial punishment was ever inflicted upon them. Their persistence in flagrant violations of the law, and the demoralizing and debasing results of those violations, caused the Legislature to make felonies those offenses which had theretofore been misdemeanors. Under the new law they continued in the same open and defiant course, and when brought to justice and forced to admit their guilt they were in the most unseeming haste, without any consultation on his part with the officers of the State through whose efforts their conviction had been secured.

Such action of the Governor is inconsistent with the principles which should regulate the granting of pardons and tends to bring into disrepute the administration of justice.

We therefore recommend an amendment to the Constitution which shall withdraw from the Governor the power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons for offenses against the laws of the State, and vesting that power in a Board of Pardons.

A RECORD OF OUR INVESTIGATIONS

has been preserved for the use of those who succeed us, in order that they may proceed with a work of which much remains to be done. The investigation should be pushed as speedily and vigorously as possible within the limits of the law.

We submit the facts and suggestions contained in this report for the consideration of the court and the people of this community in the sincere and earnest hope that they, in conjunction with the law-makers of the State, may at the earliest opportunity take measures to correct these great evils and abuses, and that the court will direct our successors to take up and finish the investigation which we have pursued as far as our term of service has permitted.

In conclusion: We have had before us sixty-six cases of which we have found fifty-five bills and ignored eleven. All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS RICHESON,
Foreman.

What it Means.

Col. Richeson's statement that the police business had not been finished by the jury, which was made when he handed in the report, is construed to mean that there is more matter against McEntire, Butler, Caruth and Lutz. It is also said that several witnesses before the present Grand Jury will be indicted for perjury, growing out of their testimony before the jury, which adjourned to-day.

Harris' Successor.

After the Grand Jury had retired, Mr. Harris stepped forward and read the following document:

"Hon. Garnet L. VanWagoner, Judge of the St. Louis Criminal Court:

"SIR—Owing to the impaired state of my health, and believing it essential to my full and permanent recovery, I desire to be relieved for a time from the full performance of the duties imposed upon the Circuit Attorney. I do not wish to have the office suffer in any respect from my absence, and to this end I desire to say Mr. Marshal F. McDonald, my former clerk, is thoroughly familiar with all the affairs of my office and all prosecutions pending before your Court. He is also, as I believe and know, a man of integrity, and is both capable and efficient—I know of no one more so—to properly discharge the duties of the office of Circuit Attorney. I therefore respectfully and earnestly request that you appoint him to fill my place during my temporary absence. Very truly, yours,

JOS. R. HARRIS,
"Circuit Attorney, Eighth Judicial Circuit."

When the matter was read,

JUDGE VAN WAGONER

said: "Mr. Harris, I have always endeavored to forward your interests and those of the court. From what you have said to me I know you must go away, and I am sure no one regrets it as much as I. When do you wish to leave?"

Mr. Harris—On Tuesday.

Judge Van Wagoner—Could you wait a day or two. I would like to consider this matter somewhat longer?

Mr. Harris—I may do that.

Judge Van Wagoner—I do not want the Circuit Attorneyship to be vacant?

Mr. Harris—There is an important murder case on the docket, and I think my successor should be in harness as soon as possible.

Judge Van Wagoner—Well, as I have said, I have always endeavored to further your interests. I have faithfully considered my duty under the circumstances. I like Mr. McDonald and respect him as a gentleman and a scholar, but, under the circumstances, I will appoint Thomas B. Harvey. I think his name is Thomas B.

Mr. Harris—Thomas B. Harvey.

Mr. Harvey stepped forward immediately and was sworn in by Deputy Clerk Finney.

Who Are Indicted?

Among the indictments returned by the Grand Jury are the following:

HENRY A. NEWMAN,

the Commissioner of Labor Statistics in this State, is indicted for brokerage in office in connection with the sale of his notaryship. The story is told elsewhere.

a member of the Legislature, is indicted for bribery, in connection with his securing a job for young Gunn on the Chestnut street patrol wagon.

WARREN F. M'CHESNEY

is indicted for his attempt to secure money from the Saloon-keepers' Association in connection with Noonan's decision.

who kept the tea store on Fifth street where prizes were given, is indicted under the gambling law. All these are felonies and the indictments will not be made public until the arrests are made.

Messrs. McEntire, Butler, Caruth and Lutz are indicted for conspiracy. The document is as follows:

The Indictment.

STATE OF MISSOURI, CITY OF ST. LOUIS—ss.
St. Louis Criminal Court, October Term, 1883.

The Grand Jurors of the State of Missouri, within and for the body of the City of St. Louis, now here in court, duly impaneled, sworn and charged upon their oaths, present that Edward Butler, Joseph H. McEntire, Frank J. Lutz, David W. Caruth, all of the City of St. Louis and State of Missouri, did on the 1st day of December, A. D. 1882, unlawfully conspire, combine, confederate and agree together and among themselves to obstruct the due administration in the city of St. Louis of the then existing laws of the said State of Missouri defining and punishing the offences of setting up and keeping gambling devices, the offense of making and establishing lotteries, gift enterprises and schemes of drawing, and the then existing laws concerning the police of the City of St. Louis, being Chapter 6 of the Appendix to the Revised Statutes of the State of Missouri, 1879.

That afterwards, to-wit: On the 15th day of December, A. D., 1882, the said Jos. H. McEntire, in pursuance of and in order to effect the object of said conspiracy, combination, confederacy and agreement so had as aforesaid, did, at the said city of St. Louis, solicit and advise one John W. Campbell, then Chief of Police of said city of St. Louis to permit and allow, without interference on the part of the police force of said city, the setting up and keeping of gambling devices in said city.

That afterwards, to-wit: On the 20th day of September, A. D. 1883, the said Edward Butler, in pursuance of and in order to effect the object of said conspiracy, combination, confederation and agreement so had as aforesaid, did, at the said city of St. Louis, threaten the said John W. Campbell, Chief of Police, as aforesaid, with removal from the said office of Chief of Police in the event that he, the said John W. Campbell, did not resign the office of Chief of Police before Fair week, meaning before the first week of October, A. D. 1883.

That afterwards, to-wit: on the 9th day of October, A. D. 1883, the said Frank J. Lutz and David W. Caruth, in pursuance of and in order to effect the object of said conspiracy, combination, confederacy and agreement so had as aforesaid, did at said city of St. Louis, being then and there Police Commissioners and members of the Board of Police of the said City of St. Louis, vote at a regular meeting of the said Board of Police as such Commissioners, to arbitrarily remove without cause and without hearing, from the said office of Chief of Police, the said John W. Campbell, he, the said Campbell, being then and there the duly appointed, qualified and acting Chief of Police of the said city of St. Louis, contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided and against the peace and dignity of the State of Missouri.

M. J. SULLIVAN,
Assistant Circuit Attorney.

THE WITNESSES

to this indictment are John W. Campbell, Daniel Kerwin, Alex. Kinkead, Wm. R. Faulkner and Thos. T. Crittenden.

Indictments Against the Post-Dispatch.

Under the statute concerning the abstraction of court records, indictments were also found against Henry W. Moore, managing editor of the POST-DISPATCH, and Florence D. White, a reporter of the same paper.

Waiting for the Jury.

About the building during the day there wa the greatest desire to hear the result of the Grand Inquest's deliberations. The various delays excited the curiosity of the people in attendance, and when 1:1f p. m. was reached and no report had been delivered, the number of speculations as to the cause of the delay was numerous. It was stated about 1 p. m. that Col. Tom Richeson, the foreman, was preparing a most elaborate report, which was one of the causes of the postponement of the show. Col. Tom has been busy for several nights working at the document, to such an extent that his private secretary has been complaining of the extra labor. It is said that Mr. Richeson has been borrowing books of poetical selections, and a copy of the King James version of the Bible, and it was predicted that the report would be replete with all the graces of rhetoric. At 1:20 p. m. Judge Van Wagoner came in and sat on the bench a few minutes. No jury appeared. The Judge, who was in a bad humor, said: "Let them call me when they want me. I can't wait all day." He then skipped out.

What They Got.

Clerk Staed came into the court early in the afternoon and handed to Ben Finney a number of warrants on the City Treasurer to pay the Grand Jury. Each man was credited with twenty-one days' service, which, at $1 50 per day, made $31 50, the amount of money to which each one was entitled.

The Indicted.

is a prominent ward politician and blacksmith, whose favorite boast is that every dollar he has ever made he has "hammered out of iron." He has been in politics many years and has controlled Democratic nominations pretty much as he wished. Butler was a strong Crittenden man, as were Maxon, McEntire, D. Lancaster and a number of others. He did good service in fixing the St. Louis delegation for the gubernatorial incumbent. In return, Crittenden, among other things, had pledged himself that McEntire should be Coal Oil Inspector and Dick Lancaster a Police Commissioner. He at first "went back on" both promises. It was at that time that Ed Butler was raising a subscription to purchase and prepare the celebrated "Ananias Belt," which was to be presented to Crittenden with the compliments of his late friends and allies. The Governor afterwards "squared" himself partially by McEntire's appointment, but Dick Lancaster never got there. Butler is now indicted because of his attempts to control the Police Department and dictate its policy, as shown by the evidence of Chief Campbell, Dan Kerwin, W. R. Faulkner and others. He has been regarded as an honorary member of the Police Board since the Cupples Board went out. Mr. Butler was indicted once before in connection with the Scheme and Charter investigation.

JOSEPH H. M'ENTIRE,

the present coal-oil inspector, whose name figures among the indictments above given, is a well-known politician. The charge against him grows out of evidence furnished by many persons, among the principal witnesses being Chief of Police Campbell, Dan Kerwin, W. R. Faulkner and others.

The Grand Jury got the facts which caught him in their nets while investigating a general charge of conspiracy to control the Police Department for political and corrupt purposes. It will be remembered that Chief Campbell told a story to the effect that McEntire had informed him that he could easily get a nice house and lot, and $10,000 besides, if he would let the boys run, and that on another occasion Mr. McEntire had stated that if gambling was not allowed to bob up serenely, he (McEntire) did not see where the funds to run the next Democratic campaign in Missouri were to be obtained. Mr. McEntire is in with Mr. Butler and Messrs. Caruth and Lutz in a general indictment which will cover all these attempts to control and make changes in the department for political purposes. The gentleman is well known in the city. He lives in the southern part of the city, and has long been a power in local politics in that section of the city. He was first elected to the School Board, and was afterwards a deputy in the Collector's office, under Myer A. Rosenblatt. With Messrs. Butler, Maxon and others, he was a warm friend of Crittenden, and an industrious worker at the convention which nominated him. Harrison Attaway of Lebanon, Mo., was Coal Oil Inspector, and when his term expired McEntire's friends were all confident that the latter would get the place. They claimed that Crittenden had promised it to him. Unexpectedly, however, the late Mr. John Halliday, a well-known business man of St. Louis, was placed in the vacant position. McEntire got a notaryship instead, which he held about five months. But soon after Mr. Holliday died and again McEntire was an applicant. Mr. Ferguson of the firm of Kingsland & Ferguson then telegraphed to Gov. Crittenden a request that he should hold the appointment of Holliday's successor until a delegation could reach his Excellency and lay before him the claims of Holliday's son to succeed his father. Mr. Ferguson afterwards stated that the dispatch cost something like $4 30. Soon after Governor Crittenden came down to St. Louis. The delegation, headed by Mr. Ferguson, waited upon him at his hotel. Crittenden received them, wreathed in smiles, and, as they did not know the Governor, the gentlemen skipped down stairs perfectly satisfied that they had gained the object of their call. At the bottom of the stairs, Mr. Ferguson met a friend, and smilingly stated to him the object of his visit, together with the success that was likely to follow. "Why," said the well-posted friend, "that man you see standing by the elevator has the commission now in the breast pocket of that light spring overcoat." So it proved, and within 24 hours it was announced that the new Coal Oil Inspector was Joseph H. McEntire. Mr. McEntire has for a long time been regarded as the Governor's personal representative in this city.

The indictment found against Messrs. Butler, McEntire, Caruth and Lutz charges a misdemeanor, under the statute the maximum punishment of which is a year in jail and a fine of $1,000.

DR. F. J. LUTZ,

the Police Commissioner and vice-president of the board is, at present holding his first political office. Previously he had been an active Democratic politician, with considerable influence in the southern part of the city. As a member of several local conventions, he made quite a record as a worker. Just before his selection to the board, he became entangled in the Darleiden scandal, in which he was charged with running Darleiden out of the State to prevent his being a witness against Father Hinssen. Lutz is charged with furthering the purposes of Butler and others to control the Police Department.

DAVE CARUTH

is a prominent business man. He is in the hardware business, and was at one time mentioned as a prominent Democratic candidate for the mayoralty. He figures, through the testimony of Campbell and others, as a man who wanted no "d—n Republicans" to get anything under the present board. In general, he is in the same boat with Butler, Lutz & Co., in regard to the conspiracy to control the Police Department for political and other purposes. Caruth was the most persistent worker for Campbell's removal.

HENRY NEWMAN,

the present Commissioner of Labor Statistics, is a citizen of Randolph County. He has been a member of two legislatures, in neither of which he particularly distinguished himself. Mr. Newman got himself into trouble over a notaryship which Gov. Crittenden presented to him as a reward for past favors. Mr. Newman seems to have had little use for the commission, and witnesses have been found who told the Grand Jury that it was on the market. It is said that it was offered to Mr. Edward Tesson, the real estate man, and that gentleman whispered his tale into the ears of the Grand Jurors some days ago. It is also stated that it finally came into the possession of Mr. Edward S. Warner another real estate man of this city, who was an innocent party to the transaction. Mr. Newman sold out to him his law business for $500, it is stated. The Grand Jury, it is claimed, has discovered that Mr. Newman's "law business" was of the fairy tale order, as he had never been enrolled as an attorney. As a result, it has been taken for granted that he really sold all he had, viz: the notarial commission, and he has been indicted for so doing. Mr. Newman held the office of Deputy Tobacco Inspector under Jasper N. Burks, some time ago. He has long been a member of the State Central Committee, and his usefulnessas a political worker and wire-puller has been recognized. Gov. Crittenden promised that, in return for services rendered, Mr. Newman should succeed Henry J. Spaunhorst as Commissioner of Labor Statistics. This was when Newman was Assistant Secretary of the State Senate. A canvass of that body revealed the fact that Mr. Newman could not be confirmed. This necessitated a change in the programme. So Crittenden waited until after the Legislature adjourned to fill the office. When the solons had dispersed Newman was appointed. He has held the place ever since, and his appointment will come up for confirmation or rejection the next time the Senate meets, one year from next January.

HUGH J. BRADY

is a member of the present Legislature and has served a previous term in that body. He lives in the northern part of the city. Some years ago, he had a contract for hauling books and supplies for the School Board. Lately, he has been employed at the elevator at the foot of Biddle street. Hugh has been very successful as a ward politician, although there has been some curious charges about the way he carried his wards. The cause of his indictment is a situation which he secured for a young man named Gunn as a driver of the Chestnut street patrol wagon. For this service Mr. Gunn's father paid Mr. Brady $100 and afterwards gave him $25 extra on Brady's demand for another $100. This matter was considered as coming within the bribery statute, hence the indictment against Hugh J. Brady.

WARREN MC CHESNEY,

the alleged head of the gambling ring, was indicted by the last Grand Jury for bribery and forgery.

PICKARD,

who has been indicted under the lottery law, is the man who owned the Fourth street tea store, and his indictment is mainly to secure his attendance here as a witness against Butler.

Fire at the Four Courts.

Captain McCloy, the deputy sheriff who guards the entrance to the room occupied by the Grand Jury, noticed smoke issuing from the interstices in the Scottish Highlanders' room on the third floor of the Four Courts this morning, and, believing that there was a fire in the room, alarmed some of the officials on the second floor. Mr. Siegmund, the jailer, Attorney Charles F. Joy and others ran up stairs and burst the door in. The air in the room was thick with smoke. The window was thrown up and the smoke poured out through that aperture and the door, leaving the room in a short while clear. The fire was then seen to be in the floor about the center of the room, where a hole about two feet square had been burned. There was no flame, the fire having been a dull, slumbering one. It evidently originated in a box of sawdust used as a cuspidore and was probably caused by a lighted cigar, the Highlanders having occupied the room last night. If the fire had not been discovered at that time it is likely that it would have burned through the floor and into Clerk Staed's office below. No alarm was turned on.

BANK SWINDLER CAUGHT.

A Check-Raising Trick on the Commercial Bank Defeated.

A bold attempt to swindle the Commercial Bank of this city was frustrated this morning by the officers of the bank. One of a very scientific gang of confidence men is in cusotdy, and it is not improbable that his associates will be captured. On the 23d of October a man, well dressed and impressive looking, entered the bank, and, stating that he intended to go into business here, expressed a desire to open an account, and he deposited $500 in currency. He and his accomplice had rented a room on the fourth floor of the Ferguson building. Although the room is absolutely without furniture, the three men seemed to have a great deal of running about to do, and the elevator boy imagined that they were doing a great deal of business. Yesterday morning Nouse, who is a plausible young fellow, came into the bank and checked out $490. Just before the bank closed Nouse again appeared, this time desiring to deposit a draft. The instrument was shown to Mr. Nichol, who became suspicious of it but told the cashier to accept it. Last night Mr. Nichol called upon the Chief of Police, and, anticipating that the man would be in for his money to-day, asked that a detective be detailed to work up the case. Pat Lawler was assigned to the duty, and he was concealed in a rear office when Nouse came in at 11 o'clock with a check for $3,500. He was at once seized and taken to the Chestnut street police station. Two men who had come as far as the door with him, took the alarm and fled. Nouce protested his innocence and said that he was a clerk in the employ of Webster, and had got the place by answering an advertisement.

The draft deposited on Wednesday is for $4,612 25, from the Merchants' National Bank of Evansville, Ind., upon the Leather Manufacturers' Bank of New York. The same draft was offered for deposit at the St. Louis National Bank, which was first selected as the victim. The sharper deposited $1,000 there, but first checked out $500, which he carried to the Commercial. Yesterday he drew out all but $10 of the money at both banks. The draft is numbered 30,701. P. W. Raleigh, cashier of the bank at Evansville, telegraphs as follows: "Issued draft for $20, October 5, to Edward Webster. Yours is a forgery or raised." When the draft was offered to the St. Louis National they offered to accept it for collection only. The police are in possession of a very good description of Webster and the other accomplice, and have hopes of catching them.

A REPORTORIAL THUG.

John Fay of the Republican Again Indulges in a Brawl.

John Fay, the reporter of the Republican who had a difficulty the other day with J. C. Klein at the Four Courts, made a brutal assault on M. A. Fanning, a reporter of the POST-DISPATCH, to-day. Fay was angered at a report of his previous scrimmage which appeared in the POST-DISPATCH. He had met Fanning, however, several times and was also with him in the Criminal Court about noon to-day, but nothing passed between them. Shortly afterwards Mr. Fanning had occasion to go into the Court of Criminal Correction, and Fay stationed himself behind the entrance door to wait for him. No one suspected his purpose until Mr. Fanning came out of the court-room, and when he had gone a few steps Fay rushed up behind him and struck at him. Fanning was taken entirely by surprise, but after a few blows he put one in that laid Fay on his back. Fanning started to pass on when Fay again attacked him, and jumping on his back, after a tussle both fell to the floor, when they were separated. The assault was made without a word of warning and in a most unmanly and cowardly manner, and with the ferocity of a wildcat.

The Sub-Treasury.

A special telegram to the POST-DISPATCH from Washington this morning stated that Congressman John J. O'Neill arrived there this morning with a petition of bankers and business men of St. Louis against the transfer of the sub-treasury to the new Custom House. Gen. Edwards, the assistant treasurer, states that the bankers have all united in a petition to the Secretary of the Treasury requesting that, as a matter of convenience to them, that the sub-treasury be located in the old Custom House. A later telegram states that the Secretary of the Treasury readily granted the petition, and the sub-treasury will remain in the Equitable building until removed to Third and Olive streets at the first of the year.

The motion for a new trial in the case of John F. Buffington was overruled and defendant fined $100.

A Thief Arrested.

Coan stole a suit of clothes, some underwear and a watch from a fellow employe at 603 Market street about two weeks ago. The stolen articles were found in his possession when he was arrested. The thief is held under a charge of grand larceny.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Report of the Paymaster-General of the Army—Notes.

WASHINGTON, November 2.—The annual report of the Paymaster-General of the Army to the Secretary of War shows the receipts for the last fiscal year to be $15,490,310; disbursements, $13,382,164. There was $145,221,630 in the hands of paymasters June 30, 1883, and the remainder was deposited in the treasury since the last report.

Five officers of the pay department were retired, having attained the age of 64; one died and one was dismissed for misappropriation of public funds. Major J. R. Wasson, the officer last referred to, was a defaulter in the sum of $5,412. The amount was made good during the progress of his trial. In referring to this matter General Rochester says: "No system of accounting will prevent a corrupt official, necessarily trusted with the custody of funds, from proving recreant to his trust. The highest end that can be attained is a prompt and speedy detection of any attempt to tamper with or misappropriate funds in his keeping." The system now in use in his office, it is believed, accomplishes this end. He recommends the repeal of the proviso of the act of April 20, 1874, which provides that "no officer detailed for the purpose of inspecting the accounts of the disbursing officers of the army shall be in any way connected with the department or the corps making the disbursement."

The operation of this law prohibits the detail of officers for the purpose of inspection who, from their intimate knowledge of the accounts to be inspected and the laws and regulations, are best qualified to detect any irregularity from such an officer. In speaking of the attention called through the public press to the duplication of officers' pay accounts, Gen. Rochester stated that it is but justice to the officers of the army to say that the records of his office show the instances to be rare where an officer has been found guilty of this offense, and, considering the number of officers in the army, the percentage is exceedingly small.

JEFFERSON CITY.

Selection of the Government Building Site Gives Satisfaction—Notes.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, November 2.—Articles of association increasing the capital stock of the Raynor Cattle Company of St. Louis, from $100,000 to $250,000, and the Umneschat Cattle Company of St. Louis, from $15,000 to $25,000, were filed to-day with the Secretary of State.

The selection of the McCarty lot on High street for the location of the United States Court House as telegraphed from Washington City meets the hearty approval of a large majority of our citizens. The location is a very desirable one and is perhaps the most convenient one that could have been made among the contesting points.

Mr. Boyle of St. Louis is in the city. He had a lengthy interview with Governor Crittenden this morning.

The Supreme Court adjourned yesterday until Monday next. Judge Sherwood left last night for his home in Springfield.

Mrs. Mason No 2, wife of the Brookfield bank robber, who has been lobbying to procure a pardon or commutation of her husband's sentence, left this morning. She called on the Governor frequently during her stay without accomplishing her desired purpose.

COL. CHURCHILL'S DAUGHTER.

Mary is Very Likely in Indianapolis—Mail for Her.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 2.—The impression is strong that Mary Churchill is in Indianapolis, and this was strengthened to-day by the receipt at the Post Office of some mail addressed to her. There is no street and number given on the address, but the Post Office authorities will learn her stopping place if she calls for it.

Only Censured Them.

TROY, N. Y., November 2.—The Coroner's jury inquiring into the falling of the Fort Edward bridge, while a passenger train was crossing it, resulting in the death of two persons and injuring twenty-seven others, after forty ballots, rendered a verdict censuring the engineering department for negligence and the rail road superintendent for allowing a heavy train to cross it at the rate of five miles an hour, and the chief engineer for permitting the bridge to go without inspection.

The Lake Storm.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, November 2.—The storm continues on the lake, still lashed to fury by the gale. The schooner John P. Merril, of Milwaukee, ore laden, which stranded last night, lies easy and will probably be saved. The schooner Minch seems to be breaking to pieces. The schooner David Vance, which anchored last night outside and was in danger of being beached, was safely towed into port this morning.

Followed Up His Opinion.

TRENTON, N. J., November 2.—Judge Nixon, in the United States Circuit Court, to-day followed up his opinion of yesterday in the case of Dinsmore against the New Jersey Central Railroad, with an order that all exceptions of the plaintiff to the defendant's answer be sustained as well taken, and the clerk could expunge from said answer such scandalous and impertinent matter as he excepted to.

Tannery Burned.

NEW YORK, October 2.—In Brooklyn to-day, Mrs. Charlotte B. Furlong, aged 56, was sentenced to six and a half years' imprisonment for causing the death of Charity Lewis. Her old age, the Judge said, restrained him from imposing the full penalty of twenty years.

THE RAILROADS.

Trouble Concerning the Unloading of Freight Cars.

Standard Time—Live Stock Passes—Replacing Water with Alcohol—Notes and Personals.

F. A. Warin, Ass't G. F. A. of the Chicago and Alton, returned from Chicago this morning.

H. W. Hibbard, general freight agent of the Vandalia, will return from Chicago to-morrow.

Col. A. A. Talmage, general transportation manager of the Gould Lines, will be here to-morrow.

Geo. W. Parker, vice president and general manager of the Cairo Short Line, left for Chicago last night.

Col. J. Hill, manager of the Vandalia, and E. R. Darlow, private secretary, arrived last night from a trip over the line.

The Mo. Pacific has issued a large book tariff for points between St. Louis and Texas and Louisiana, to take effect to-day. Only changes in classification are noticed.

The C. & A. has furnished the Union Depot baggage-room with a new set of baggage checks consisting of 1,600 double checks for local use. The pocket check is round in shape and is nickle-plated.

The bridge hydraulic interlocking switch has been disconnected and all the water has been pumped out preparatory to injecting alcohol for winter use. At present no estimate can be formed of the amount of fluid it will take to perform this work, as no account was kept of the water used during the summer.

New Depot Arrangement.

Pending the construction, or rather determining the location of a new Union Depot, the management has vacated track No. 1. and given it up to passenger platform room. The Missouri Pacific, which has for years left from this track, has been given tracks Nos. 6 and 7, the Kansas City express and the Texas express leaving on separate tracks. An effort is being made to discontinue entirely the dangerous practice of joining trains in the depot. Each train will back its rear end to the main entrance aisle, thus obviating the danger of crushing passengers who congregate in bunches on the tracks.

Live Stock Passes.

THE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILWAY CO.
AND WABASH, ST. LOUIS & PACIFIC R'Y.
ST. LOUIS, October 31, 1883.

TO AGENTS—The following rules will govern the transportation of men in charge and accompanying live stock shipped under contract over the lines within this system. One person will be allowed to go free with one, two or three cars; two persons with four to seven cars, and three persons with eight cars or more in one shipment. One person only will be allowed with any number of cars of hogs or sheep.

RETURNING.

No return pass will be given for less than two cars in one shipment from one consignor to one consignee. One man may return free for two or three cars, two men for four, five six or seven, and three men for eight cars or more in one shipment. Only one return pass will be given for two or more cars of hogs or sheep. The rules will not apply on shipments between points governed by the Southwestern Railway, Iowa Trunk Line or Colorado Traffic Associations.

GEORGE OLDS, Freight Traffic Manager.

Cut Rates.

The Cairo Short Line has put on a rate to Southern points which outdoes anything yet put on the boards. Cairo is rated at $1 25, Memphis $6, and Vicksburg and New Orleans $9. This is done in order to give the laborers a chance to obtain the same rate, individually, as is offered them by the labor agencies. By the way, this labor agency business is becoming a great nuisance. One of them will get an order for say 500 men to work on the Louisiana levees. They will advertise for ten times that many, and if they get them, send the whole gang South to find that they are "too late" when the fact is too many have been forwarded. The "labor agency" man and one of the railroads "stand in" with each other for a percentage and the result is the poor laborer finds himself in the South without a job or a penny. The Cairo Short Line has put this rate out to give the laborer a chance to take a trip down south of his own volition and not pay nearly as much as he would pay to one of these agencies. B. F. Blue, general passenger agent of the Cairo Short Line, was not at his desk to-day or more might be learned of this "labor agency" business. At any rate a single workingman can get the same rate to southern points as is accorded a gang of labor agency victims.

Standard Time.

The following circular was received here this morning:

CLEVELAND, COLUMBUS, CINCINNATI AND INDIANAPOLIS RAILWAY,
INDIANAPOLIS AND ST. LOUIS R'Y.,
DAYTON AND UNION RAILROAD.
CLEVELAND, October, 1883.

DEAR SIR—At a meeting of the General Time Convention, held at Chicago, Ill., October 11, 1883, at which a large majority of all the railroad mileage of the United States and the Dominion of Canada was represented, it was agreed that a previous recommendation of the convention to adopt uniform standards of time should be put in effect with the general autumn and winter changes, which are to be made on Sunday, November 18, 1883. The standard adopted for the railroad lines in the territory traversed by the "Bee Line system" is that of the nineteenth meridian, and will be called "central time," which compares with the time now in use, as follows:

Cleveland time is thirty-three minutes faster, Columbus twenty-eight minutes faster, Cincinnati twenty-two minutes faster, Indianapolis sixteen minutes faster, and St. Louis one minute slower; in other words, from and after the date above given, the trains of these companies, which have hitherto run by Columbus (Ohio) time, will be run by a standard which is twenty-eight minutes slower. It will be important for your patrons and ours to know this fact at once, and I would feel specially obliged if you would give this circular a prominent place in your local news items, in all your regular weekly issues between now and the time it takes effect. Yours truly, A. J. SMITH, G. P. A.

The California Pool.

CHICAGO, November 1.—The managers of the railroads composing the Transcontinental Association or California Pool, this morning, on the eighteenth ballot, elected as commissioner, George W. Ristine, formerly general manager of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad, and more recently general manager of the Texas and St. Louis Railroad, which office he resigned one month ago.

The above telegram will have a pleasing piece of news to Mr. Ristine's many friends in the West, and particularly in St. Louis and Denver. That he is just the man for the place cannot be doubted, as he is thoroughly familiar with the facilities and disadvantages of every road west of the Mississippi River.

The Pennsylvania Pays.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., November 1.—The directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to-day declared a semi-annual dividend of 4½ per cent cash. The stockholders have the privilege of taking 2 per cent in stock at par.

FORENOON SESSION, CLOSING AT 1 P. M.

In some way the report was wired last night to Chicago and New York of a failure in the grain trade here. This report is utterly false. There have been no failures here, and it is most improbable that any could take place, as St. Louis grain dealers are in excellent shape financially.——Charley Albers says the only failure he knew of was his own failure yesterday to deliver "five" corn, which he had promised to deliver. George Dausman telegraphed New York, "The only failure here is the failure to sustain prices."——Receipts of wheat in Liverpool for past week were 120,600 bus, of which 64,800 bus were American.——The imports of wheat and flour into the United Kingdom, combined with the farmers' deliveries of native wheat, from August 25 to October 14, were 34,514,850 bus in 1883, 29,869,985 bu in 1882 and 31,700,884 bu in 1881.——The San Francisco Chronicle says that well posted parties in the trade still adhere to the sum of 1,000,000 tons (33,000,090 bus) wheat surplus for export for the current harvest year——Latest advices from Chicago would indicate that, while it is believed November corn is manipulated, well-informed parties there do not believe the squeeze will amount to much. It is stated that not more than about 600,000 bu No. 2 corn is in store in Chicago.——Stock of pork in New York on November 1 was 12,412 brls, against 18,106 one month ago, and 4,568 one year ago; stock of lard was 19,679 tcs, against 18,143 one month ago, and 16,843 one year ago.——Leopold Bloom bought a million bushels of wheat in Chicago this morning. It was sold to him by some of the best men there—Kent, Walker, Adams and Ream.——It is probably not known that a certain small, but intellectual young gentleman who trades in the "pit," is descended from a race of kings. In a burst of confidence the other night he informed a friend that, "Had it not been for that darned cousin of mine, the Emperor of Germany, I would now be on the English throne." The question now arises, if it takes three whisky sours to make one King full, how many More will it take to make a bobtail straight?——Wm. Stratton & Co., flour brokers, have opened an office in the city, and will transact a flour brokerage business on 'Change. Mr. Stratton has been many years in the trade, and is well known here and in the East as a competent flour expert.——Weekly review of flour production in Minneapolis by the Northwestern Miller for its issue of November 2: "The situation on the platform is very much the same as it was last week. The mills have a fair head of water, and are using it to the greatest advantage. Some run considerably short of power once in a while, but on the whole they all get along very well. The production remains about stationary, the output being not far from 19,500 barrels per day, the same as a week ago. The flour market rules dull, though in some respects a greater firmness is shown. Our receipts and shipments were as follows for the week ending October 27:

	Received.	Shipped.
Wheat, bu	567,000	58,000
Flour, brls	4,100	132,000
LAST WEEK.
Flour, brls	7,075	114,483
Wheat, bu	634,000	45,000

Wheat receipts continue comparatively light, barely equalling the amount used by the mills. The stock in store in the elevators (including the transfer) and mills of the city on Tuesday, was nearly the same as on the previous week, being about 1,450,000 bu. At St. Paul there were 244,000 bu, against 235,000 bu last week, and at Duluth 990,000 bu, against 1,098,700 bu the previous week."

Another quiet day to chronicle in grain speculative circles. During the whole of the session there was nothing really interesting turned up. Trading was small and spiritless in wheat, chiefly on local account. Wheat proved something of a disappointment to the bears, who believed by the weak closing of yesterday that lower prices would rule to-day. It probably would have declined, too, had it not been for local bulling in Chicago probably for a "scalp." English cables were no higher, though the tone was reported as better, while private cables were steadier. The weather was as fine as silk and receipts at Western points were comparatively liberal. New York was weaker at the opening and sold off some, though recovering a little later, only to rush off again. Chicago was also lower at the opening, but under heavy purchases by shorts and "scalpers," sold up ⅜c above yesterday's close. This advance stiffened the home market, stimulating the demand, and lessening selling offers. December started in at $1 02 and went up to $1 02¼; January opened at $1 04¼, sold off to $1 04@1 04⅛, and then up to $1 04¼@1 04⅜; May sold irregularly at $1 10 to $1 09⅞, the top price being paid on the first call for all these options, and November sold there at $1 00½, and February at $1 06¼. After this call prices eased off, as other markets were letting down, and telegrams from speculative centers were growing bearish in tone. December went off to $1 02@1 02⅛, January to $1 04@1 04⅛ and May to $1 09¾@1 09⅞, and on the noon call the situation was about unchanged, except that December sold at $1 02⅛, and January at $1 04⅛@1 04⅜. Subsequently the feeling became weaker and weaker, notwithstanding late cables were said to be 3@6d higher, and at the close December and January were down to yesterday's latest rates, while May was ⅛c lower. Corn futures exhibited more life, trading in year being right free, as there were a good many orders received. Eastern markets and Chicago were higher and firm and private English cables were firmer. Receipts, however, were larger in the West, and the weather was all that could be desired. The demand and the stronger advices more than annulled these otherwise weakening influences, and an advance followed and was maintained during most of the session. Year was traded in actively at 41⅞ to 42, with most sales "on the split"—41⅞@42, but late became weak and eased off to yesterday's latest rate. Little was done otherwise, but November sold ¼ higher and May ⅛ up. Oats were slow and weaker, May selling ⅛@¼ higher early, but subsequently the whole line letting down and at close ⅛@¼ below yesterday. Cash grades of wheat were in fair milling and order request at prices about the same as yesterday, No. 2 Mediterranean selling ⅜ higher. No. 2 red was steady. No. 2 mixed corn advanced ½c and was in good shipping request, chiefly by exporters; rejected also bettered in price. Cash oats were firmer and a fraction higher, the demand coming almost entirely on order account, but absorbing all offered and asking for more.

A lot of 250 tcs prime steam lard sold for shipment at 7.17½. The best demand came for dry salt meats, as the weather was cool, and buyers preferred salted to smoked meats. Hempseed—Dull and nominal at $1 50.

Cotton.

Spots to-day were generally steady and without change. Trading was better and the transfers at all points larger. Locally a good business was done, the demand being active and holders willing to sell. At 2:30 p. m. transactions amounted to over 1,400 bales. Futures were irregular, with a tendency to greater ease. Liverpool at the opening was flat and lower than last night's close, and closed unsettled at a partial advance. Manchester reported yarns and fabrics dull. New York opened quiet at a point or two off advanced 3 to 7 points, only to decline again. The tendency of values at 2:30 p. m. being to a lower range, New Orleans showed but little change from last night's closing, the difference in prices not being any way marked.

CATTLE—The trade this morning was about as dull as it well could be. The supply was moderate, but among the offerings were five or six loads of really good native cattle, the balance consisting of common, half-fattened range cattle and mixed cows, heifers, or steers. Local buyers were poorly represented, and the business during the opening hours was confined to small retail lots. Eastern and interior shippers were late in putting in an appearance, and on the whole the general market was in a very unsatisfactory condition, and salesmen saw nothing encouraging in it. Values were without any marked change and ruled quiet at the following:

SHEEP—Market without any particular change or activity. Good sheep scarce and in fair demand. Common dull and weak.

DURING THE PAST TWO MONTHS

So many large Eastern Clothing Houses failed that some of the large Woolen Manufacturers became uneasy, and did not know where it was safe to place their merchandise, and like large firms like ours propose to close out their entire production of a certain style for SPOT CASH, they were glad to sell the goods at a great sacrifice. Among the lots closed by our firm, Browning, King & Co., was one of 1,000 Pieces, or 35,000 Yards, HAWTHORN DIAGONALS, Dark Green, Brown and other mixtures, enough for which they divided among their FIVE Retail Stores, and we are selling them at $10.00!

6,500 OVERCOATS

Same goods in other houses are sold at $16 50 to $18 00. Also, from another line of ALL WOOL CASSIMERES and DIAGONALS, equally as good, a number of styles

MEN'S SUITS AT $12!

Worth elsewhere $16 to $18. These goods are all made at our New York factory, and are as perfect in fit and make as tailor-made clothes, and are very different from same grade of goods sold by other houses in this city, bought of Eastern Jobbers, and which have a certain wholesale, ready-made appearance that the practiced eye at once detects, and which becomes painfully apparent to the buyer after such clothes have been worn a short time.

The bar of St. Louis ought to join in the reception to Sherman. There is a heap more fighting done by the bar, nowadays, than by the so'diers.

Morris Ranger, the Liverpool cotton bankrupt, wants to pay thirty-three cents on the dollar. He ought to raise seventeen cents more, and "settle like a gentleman."

It will take several weeks for the military to get settled down in their new posts. Just now our generals are having a martial game of Pussy Wants a Corner, which extends all over the land.

We are sorry to say that the Imaūm of Muscat has turned out badly. There are few of these potentates whom it is safe to trust, but we still maintain our confidence in the Akhoond of Swat and the Jam of Nowannuggur.

The Irish National Press unite in denouncing the dynamite atrocities in London recently. This is their plain duty, and the vigor and genuineness with which it is done shows that there is hope for the Emerald Isle yet.

Sherman ought to have a reception, and nothing less than a public reception will do. It is right and proper for his wealthy and personal friends to give him private entertainments, but the character of our new citizen imperatively calls for some additional entertainment which shall have a representative character.

Miss Aggie Hill, who is suing Sharon for divorce, claims that ten millions of the Senator's dollars were aggregated by her powerful coöperation with him, and she desires an equitable distribution of the profits of the firm. She seems to admire Sharon very much, when it comes to a sharon of the assets, but not otherwise.

On Wednesday the Post-Dispatch had an editorial on "Numbers," apropos of Arnold's lecture and another on "Dynamite," referring to the news from London. On Friday the Republican followed with two editorials on the same two topics. The Republican often gets its news and its editorial topics out of a Post-Dispatch that is several days old.

The Milwaukee physicians have discovered a girl in that town with sensitive legs which cannot be touched from dawn till midnight without much pain, but which during the rest of the twenty-four hours are insensible to the heaviest discharges of electricity. This case is not so surprising as one would at first imagine, because all Milwaukee girls are very sensitive about their feet.

The military schools of the world must be in a very bad way according to General Sherman's report. He says West Point will compare favorably with any of them, but, inasmuch as West Point maintains a system of discipline and education which was introduced at the beginning of the century, we are inclined to think that Sherman's rose-colored opinion of that institution is based rather on affection than on reason.

Hon. R. T. Van Horn, of the Kansas City Journal, discusses the poker question with all the authority of a veteran expert who has studied the game in all its aspects, from the Indian wigwam or Western haymow to the marble halls of Washington. He has not yet made up his mind whether it is a game of chance or of skill, but he is satisfied that the Supreme Court of Missouri is the most competent tribunal in the world to settle the question forever. There is not a judge on the bench, he says, "who could not give a St. Louis gambler points on the game." If their experience with poker has been anything like Gov. Crittenden's experience with option dealing, they will, of course, declare that it is "demoralizing to individuals and pernicious to society."

The verdict of the Coroner's jury in the Zura Burns murder case relegates her death to that list of criminal mysteries which is a standing disgrace to American justice. It remains to be seen whether the detectives will be able to solve the enigma. True, there is little hope that the brute will be brought to justice. The detective talent of this country is not keeping pace with the development of crime, and there are few instances on record where a murderer, not taken red-handed, has been run down and punished. Seeing that the courts and the law furnish so many loop-holes of escape to the criminal when caught, and that a large percentage of the criminals are never even brought to a position where the inadequacies of our laws become apparent, it is no wonder that crime increases so dreadfully about us. Our criminal law is becoming a farce, and the Zura Burns case simply illustrates its dismal futility.

CHARITY TO REBELS.

A Republican exchange, speaking of the payment of about $25,000 a year to disabled Confederate veterans in Georgia, says the law is creditable to the State and that no old soldier will question its righteousness. But it also suggests that the law is unconstitutional, and would hardly stand in the courts.

There is nothing in the Constitution, or in the reconstruction amendments, that affects the power of the State to take care of its paupers. The fourth section of the Fourteenth amendment provides that "neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States." The words "debt" and "obligation" as here used have an obvious meaning which cannot include the charity a State voluntarily doles out to its starving paupers. If Georgia can admit a maimed and helpless Confederate soldier to one of her poor-houses, she is just as free to give him an annual pittance to enable him to eke out a subsistence with such other means as he may have or can obtain from charitable friends.

It is inconceivable that the language of the amendment was chosen or intended to cut off from all participation in public charity a few miserable remnants of the rank and file, while their surviving officers are holding high and lucrative offices in both Federal and State Governments. The restriction is expressly applied to the United States, as well as to the State Governments. If a Republican President can commission Longstreet and Mosby to draw good salaries from the Federal Treasury, Georgia can also dole out a little bread money to the poor human wrecks who followed them to battle.

THE HIGHER LAW.

As if to show that human nature respected no geographical limits, the news of the killing of Lynch by Rowell in Batavia, New York, comes to recall the killing of Davis by Thompson, in Harrodsburg, Kentucky.

There is the wide difference between the two cases that Rowell had proof of the offence which the Kentucky member of Congress only suspected, but the principle underlying each deed of blood was the same, the old barbarian idea of private vengeance and of blood atonement, mixed up with a lingering belief in the old savagery which held that a wife was a husband's chattel, held by relations which were raised beyond the reach of common or statute law.

It is a strange perversity of a nation which calls itself civilized, and which professes to be governed by law, that not one of our Commonwealths will dare enact in a statute the law which is established by twenty decisions from the bench and a hundred verdicts from juries, that a wronged husband has the right to murder his wife's paramour.

We claim that our Legislatures are representative bodies, that the will of the people is expressed in their statutes, but there is no statute to sanction this higher law of conjugal vengeance. If any legislator were to propose such a thing he would be hooted into retreat by the execrations of the civilized world. But the higher law, which we dare not put into words, prevails in fact in every State of the Union. So far as we remember, the murder of "Pet" Halsted, in New Jersey, a few years ago, is the only instance in which such a murder has paid murder's penalty.

It will be curious to see whether New York has advanced in respect for the law since the famous Sickles case established the precedent which has held authority since. Were he in Kentucky or in Missouri, Mr. Rowell would be as safe a risk as an insurance company could take, but we are very much afraid that the days of this kind of chivalry are over in New York. A Batavian jury may think that a husband who sets a trap for his neighbor, baiting it with a young and blooming wife, is not exactly the personage to teach merely common and decent people a higher law.

THE HENNEPIN CANAL.

We would be glad to know where the Chicago Inter-Ocean discovered that St. Louis opposed the Hennepin Canal project. Our recollection is that the St. Louis delegation contributed largely to the success of the first convention which worked in favor of the canal, and our merchants feel now, as they have always felt, anxious for every species of improvement which will make the markets of the East more accessible to the produce of the Mississippi Valley. Our people have large views as to the future of this region and they believe in a broad and statesmanlike policy which shall develop the whole valley. The immediate promoters of the Hennepin Canal are doing our work, and it is bad taste, bad policy and bad judgment on the part of the Chicago press to attempt to antagonize our people by articles such as they are printing. The Northern river States can not do without us. If the South and the Southwest veto the Hennepin Canal bill, it will stay vetoed. At the same time we want alliance and not antagonism with our Northern neighbors. We are anxious that their great resources should be developed, and we have for years been contending that internal improvement is the duty of the Federal Government. Our sectionalism in St. Louis is very broad, it reaches from Manitoba to the Gulf of Mexico, from the Alleghanies to the Rockies. The valley united can command the situation. We fear very much there is a tendency in Chicago to disunite us. The Hennepin Canal is a measure to benefit our neighbors; the improvement of the Mississippi River and its navigable tributaries is a measure which will bring wealth to their doors as well as to ours. Our interests are identical, and the Northwest and Southwest should go hand in hand to the National Capital. So going we would come back with great success.

But we are committed to Mississippi River improvement; that is our final touchstone whereby we will try everything. In all sober seriousness, we ask the Hennepin canal people to examine the situation seriously before they commit themselves to friends who are not friends—who have no single reason for courting the alliance, save opposition to River Improvement and the hope to stir up mutiny in our camp. We ask them not to antagonize the rest of the valley.

We deserve the amity and the help of all of the States lying north of us and we would go very far to secure it, but—our shibboleth is the Mississippi, and there will be little for enemies of river improvement to boast, whether neighbors or outlanders, when the contest is over. We believe that we are strong enough to hold what we have won, and to win what we still need; but we know that we have the strength and the will to punish those who seek their gain through our loss.

Gov. Crittenden's St. Louis machine, it seems, charges candidates for judgeships only $500 a piece for Democratic nominations. This is dirt cheap, compared with the market price in New York. There, the candidate for the office of Register, which is worth $75,000 a year, has to pay Tammany $30,000, and then divide $15,000 more between Irving Hall and the County Democracy, making a total of $45,000. As a Supreme Court Judge in New York gets $15,000 a year, his nomination costs $25,000. We hear a good deal about the policy of making the legitimate emoluments of office very large, in order to shield the incumbent from all temptation to seek illicit gain, but the experience of banks, railroad and insurance companies does not sustain the theory, and it appears that increasing the emoluments of a public office only increases the blackmail levied on the candidate by the machine politicians who run conventions and control nominations.

By no means all of the disorder and lawlessness in Ireland is to be imputed to the Nationalists. The Orangemen in the north have been making themselves conspicuous recently in a manner which recalls the good old days of "no surrender" and the "Hellfire Club." During Sir Stafford Northcote's visit a convent in Belfast was mobbed and one of the nuns died subsequently, her death being distinctly caused by the outrage. At Londonderry yesterday the Orangemen shot a man and a boy, and organized a mob which was with great difficulty dispersed by the police. The situation in the north of Ireland is one of grave peril, and the peculiar method of conserving law and order by wrecking convents and firing on unarmed men does not seem as yet to have met with much success.

Having been asked to name "a dozen or more Democratic newspapers in this State which have openly declared themselves in favor of prohibition," the Columbia Statesman presents the following list:

Brownsville Herald, Clarksville Sentinel, Lathrop Times and Mirror, Humphrey Gazette, Canton Press, Nodaway Democrat, West Plains Gazette, Salisbury Press-Spectator, Exeter Beacon, Richmond Democrat, Nevada Mail, Utica Herald, Ashland Bugle, Columbia Statesman.

The Statesman also asserted that there were "three times that many editors who are for it, but have not the courage to say so." Will Col. Switzler now have the courage to name these editors, so that, like the newspapers in the foregoing list, they can all have a fair chance to confess or deny the soft impeachment?

The question as to who shall pay elevator storage, the buyer or the seller of grain, has at last, after two years of litigation, arrived in the Missouri Supreme Court, where it will be shortly settled. The original amount in dispute in this case was $5 80, plus an immortal principle. The $5 80, the immortal principle and damages to the extent of $375, are now at issue. The Merchants' Exchange rule, made January 9, 1878, changed the former custom whereby the seller paid storage, and put that payment on the shoulders of the buyer. The price of grain immediately accommodated itself to the altered rule, and matters, except in convenience, were just as they were before.

We would suggest to the court-martial that is about to try Col. Butler that the quality of mercy is not strained, but droppeth upon the place beneath like unto a Scotch mist. Therefore, as you are strong, be merciful. If the death penalty is to be inflicted, let it be as a soldier should die, a platoon of infantry, a moment's roar of the rifles, and a veteran less on the roll. We should consider it highly improper to hang Col. Butler, and we trust that the court-martial will see this matter in the same light.

Good Bye, Tom.

From the Knob Knoster Gem.

Handsome Tom Crittenden has always been one of our favorites as a man and personal friend, and we championed him for the gubernatorial struggle with an ardor born of admiration. After his advent in the chair the Gem smoothed over his errors, praised his good work, and it is with a rather sad heart that we are called upon to chronicle such a severe backsliding movement as will almost cost him an impeachment trial. The Post-Dispatch, that Cœur de Leon of the Western press has at last run the game to its den. It will be well for the Democratic party, better for the people and best for the Governor himself, when Tom Crittenden's term of office expires. Personally we have not lost all regard for the gentleman, but we are forced to admit, that as an executive, he has made the worst we ever knew. Johnson County is terribly disappointed and humbled by the revelations in the Post-Dispatch.

Arthur's Thanks.

From the Chicago Times.

The President has much to return thanks and sing praises for. He has spent several months in excursions which have brought him health and much enjoyment. He has escaped capture by wicked cowboys in the Yellowstone and by designing females in Washington, the fish have bitten well, and his catches have been large; he has been able to preserve the threatened peace of his cabinet and to check civil service reform before it did any particular harm. Undoubtedly the man who will raise his voice in the most earnest devotions on Thanksgiving day will be the President.

Domesticated Quails.

From a Missouri Exchange.

A gentleman out in Howell County caught a gang of young quails last spring and concluded he would see if he could domesticate them. His efforts to domesticate this noble game bird, it seems, have proven very successful. The birds feed and chirp about his premises gentle as chickens; and it is said they have a very interesting knack of imitating almost every bird they hear. The only evidence of their wild nature which they seem to retain is a habit they have of flying away daily, but always coming back regularly at the proper time. Such pretty things as a gang of quails would be nice to have around.

The Governor's Friends.

From the Richmond Democrat.

The gamblers and bummers that compose the ring seem to be about the only friends Crittenden has left in St. Louis. Such a denunciation by the leading men of a great city was never before made of the principal executive officer of a great State as has recently been made of Crittenden in that city. Somehow little Tom has succeeded in making himself very obnoxious to the people generally. One of our citizens about sized him up the other day when he said: "Crittenden is an ambitious schemer without the brains to put his schemes into execution."

"The Crimes of Paris."

From the New Orleans Picayune.

George Conquest and Paul Merritt have brought out a new play in London called "The Crimes of Paris." In it the demon robs, stabs, drowns, forges and commits bigamy. The detective bears innumerable disguises and detects nothing. Finally the demon, desperate, struggles with the detective. The detective knocks the demon down. The demon brains the detective with his own handcuffs. The demon's discarded mistress enters, shoots the demon and marries the detective. This kind of society drama is wanted here. Every-day sins have grown too tame for the stage.

Public Service Appreciated.

From the Louisiana (Mo.) Press (Dem.)

We feel like entering a plea of "not guilty" for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for burglarizing the office of the Clerk of the Criminal Court. It has certainly furnished some very racy reading, besides exposing the corruptions in the Police Department, that would, to a large extent, have remained hidden from public view. Not only this, but it has enabled the people throughout the State to form correct conclusions as to the actual merits of Gov. Crittenden, whom we have all along said was a "bad egg."

Bound to be Wrong.

From the Cape Girardeau Courier.

Maj. John N. Edwards is very unfortunate since he took charge of the St. Joseph Gazette. Not a single State question has he attempted to discuss but what he has been on the wrong side. His latest venture is the most unfortunate of all. He attempts to defend Gov. Crittenden in the St. Louis Police Commissioner troubles.

Disowned.

From the Richmond Democrat.

It should be borne in mind that the Democracy of the State of Missouri no longer hold themselves responsible for the acts of Gov. Crittenden. He has been repudiated by four-fifths of the Democratic papers and at least that proportion of Democratic voters.

A Good Work.

From the Glasgow Missourian.

The Post-Dispatch is doing good work in exposing the doings of the gambling ring and tea-store lottery. The Post-Dispatch deserves and receives the commendation of every right thinking man for its fearless expositions of the ring.

POLITICAL DRIFT.

The old ticket is no good; it has been punched.

Mr. Mahone is on his knees looking for the lost key to the situation.

Gov. Ben Butler seems to be giving his opponents in Massachusetts a kind of greased-pig chase.

The Philadelphia Call thinks there is the making of a good angler in Mr. Arthur if he would only let politics alone.

A solid Democratic North is likely to be one of the results of the administration's attempt to capture Democratic States in the South.

The liveliest campaign now in progress in this country is that in Massachusetts. Gov. Ben Butler doesn't intend that his State shall go to sleep.

Windsor, Canada, is getting fearfully agitated over the question of the color-line in public schools, and the whole province of Ontario wants to take a hand in the trouble.

It is stated that a good many voters in Virginia will go to the polls with their pistols. The only thing the right-minded voter needs when he goes to the polls is a ballot.

It may be mentioned as a phenomenon in politics that out of the 718,166 ballots cast at the recent election in Ohio there were only eleven scattering votes, the rest all being thrown for regularly nominated candidates.

After the votes that will be cast next Tuesday shall have been counted Gen. Logan will be able to decide whether or not his boom is to be squelched by that particular boom whose fortunes are staked on New York and Mahoneism.

Jay Hubbell intimates that he might be induced to become the candidate for Governor of Michigan. Mr. Hubbell evidently forgets that he is the most likely man for the Republican nomination for President in 1884.

Says the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette: "The policy of appointing Territorial officers from the people resident in the Territories should be persisted in. It will have a tendency to influence the migration of aspiring politicians from older communities, and thus relieve the congestion from which some of the States are suffering."

The political opponents of Mayor John B. Manning of Buffalo have attempted to defeat his re-election by means of a disgraceful conspiracy. They employed an unscrupulous adventuress to write him letters stating that she had fallen in love with him and desired a meeting. Suspecting a trap, the Mayor secured her arrest and obtained from her a confession revealing the plot and the actors in it.

Gen. Sheridan sees now important it is to keep Col. Mike with him. The next war will have to be described, and somebody must be at hand who can compose exciting reading.

General Sherman will draw a salary of $17,500 per year until death. This will compensate him for the loss of scollops and red tape, and enable him to go off fishing every summer.

Boston's four richest men are Frederick L. Ames, $15,000,000; John M. Forbes, $12,000,000, and Oliver Ames and William G. Weld, $6,000,000 each. As Governor Butler has not realized on his spoons, he cannot take his place in the quartet.

Mr. Arnold once spoke of Mr. Beecher as "a heated barbarian." On Sunday he went to hear Beecher preach. After the delivery of the sermon the latter worked his way down through the crowded aisle and, warmly grasping the hand of the visitor, said: "Although I have never had the pleasure of knowing you personally you have been my master for many years. I have read all you have written two or three times over and always with profit, including the abuse." "I am afraid it was unjust abuse," replied Mr. Arnold apologetically. "No, no; not at all. I deserved it all and it did me good," said the Brooklyn man.

Mlle. Nixon, of Grau's French Opera Troupe, being beautiful, and having retired from the stage to enjoy a large fortune with a New York dude, is replaced in the company by Mlle. Fouquet, who was in the New Orleans troupe last season.

The statement that Mrs. Langtry had started on her professional career without the society and support of Mr. Gebhardt was premature. She appeared at Burlington, Vt., on Saturday night last. A letter from there says: "Mrs. Langtry arrived in town on the early train from New York Friday morning. Her private car was placed on a side track and in this she lived. Freddie was present and attended rehearsal." It will be seen by this that Gebhardt is still the leading feature of the combination.

One of Anna Dickinson's friends says: "We have it from her own lips—and her tongue is as true as her heart—that she has never lost a cent on the stage. Her losses and consequent misfortunes are such as fall to the lot of of both sexes who make unfortunate investments, and put too much faith in humanity. She supports an aged mother besides other near and dear relatives; and her present heart-wail is not for herself, but for 'my poor mother,' who so needs her accustomed help."

The Chicago Times regards Susan B. Anthony as a pleasing exception to the generality of American beauties in Europe. "She did not put herself into the hands of a professional leader of society to be 'brought out.' She did not seek the acquaintance of the Prince of Wales, and they have not been seen together on the public drives or in his box at the theater. Pursuing, on the contrary, a quiet and modest course, she has escaped the rude stares of curious crowds and the gossip which no right-minded woman, however beautiful, cares to excite."

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying To-Day.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

New York, November 2.—The World says: "Governor Crittenden of Missouri admits that he has toyed in options to his detriment, and he is therefore of the mournful opinion that stock and grain gambling should be prohibited in his State. A number of persons have passed in at the upper end of Wall street in this city and have been tossed out at the lower end in a condition such as would cause the prodigal son in his swine and husk stage to appear affluent, and some of them while in this shabby attitude have doubtless felt like appealing to the Legislature for a law to abolish stock gambling. Some have gone so far as to consult with O'Donovan Rossa as to the cost of dynamite in the gross. But as a rule they procure a clean shirt and start in again with a Spartan determination to 'get even.' It required but a small amount of bitter experience to convert Gov. Crittenden into a stern moralist. We fear that he is not 'game.'"

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "Gen. Hazen's unenviable part in the management of the Greely Arctic expedition is likely to be clearly brought out by the Garlington court of inquiry. Indeed, it is believed in army circles that Secretary Lincoln is after the chief signal officer's scalp. It looks squally for Hazen. If he keeps a looking-glass, we advise him to study it every morning to see if his hair kinks. If he keeps a cow let him observe closely if she does not kick out with her hind foot. We learn from that able Government publication, the book of weather proverbs, that these are sure signs of an approaching storm, and we have forebodings that something may strike around that Weather Bureau before the winter is over."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "The Prohibitionists are confident that they can get 50,000 votes for their candidates and practically for the success of the party which has ruled the City of New York in the interests of its rum shops, and will use its power in the State to promote free liquor. They may be described as Carlyle described the population of England, 'mostly fools.'"

THE HERALD.

The Herald says: "Seldom in a single day have the city and nation got rid of two such dangerous characters as 'Mart' Allen, the burglar, and 'Steve' Raymond, the forger, the former of whom was yesterday sent to prison for ten years, while the latter was sentenced for life. Murder is a graver offense than either of these two noted criminals is known to have committed, but whereas the murderer is generally put out of the way for his first offense, thieves and forgers are at work all the while, and those who are at all able generally do an incalculable amount of mischief before they are detected."

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "The pathway of the Democratic 'harmonizer' is not a flowery one in this city at the present time. Mr. Ecclesine and his associates can testify to that fact. They undertook to get Mr. Kelly and Mr. Thompson to unite on candidates for the Senate in three districts which the Republicans are fairly certain to carry. Not only did the 'harmonizers' signally fail, but they were charged with making the attempt in order to secure political capital for themselves. If they profit by the lesson they will hereafter cease to intermeddle with the direction of the affairs of the Democratic party of this city. That concerns only Mr. Kelly and Mr. Thompson. The remainder of the party should meekly obey orders and vote as either one or the other of the two leaders direct."

Mr. Crunden's Reply.

St. Louis, November 1, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If a "Life member" were on the ground, so that I could point out to him the practical difficulties of doing certain things which he thinks ought to be done, I could give him a much more satisfactory explanation than I hope to do in any communication, however lengthy. Since he will not allow me an opportunity of a personal interview, and insists that the whole community is interested in the matter, I will endeavor to furnish a candid and categorical answer to his questions and complaints.

1. Why are not papers left on files two weeks?

For two reasons: First, because the files will not hold so many papers; second, because if left that long—supposing the files could hold them—they would be torn to pieces.

If your correspondent doubts this statement, let him look at some of the papers this morning which have been on file since last Friday. I must state further that after removal from the files papers are kept in order, each paper by itself, for six weeks; and the file can be obtained any time at a moment's notice. It is, of course, impossible to preserve them thus for an indefinite period—or at least the call for them would not warrant the trouble and expense. The numbers your correspondent wanted must have been more than six weeks old, and for that reason were to be obtained only by search through the "promiscuous heap" into which all papers (except those preserved for binding) are finally thrown.

2. As to the alleged crowding of the papers. In the first place we were not aware that any serious inconvenience was caused by the present spacing, which cannot be greatly enlarged for several reasons. The space alluded to as filled with pictures is in a dark corner, and when the files were arranged was entirely (and still is partly) cut off from the view of the reading-room attendant. Experience has shown the necessity of having every part of the room under ready supervision. As to the other suggestions for making more room, the "little red papers" are filed together, and it would not do to leave the weeklies loose on the tables, as they could not be found when wanted.

3. Now, as to the order of filing the papers, it is this, and it is the same as it has been for five years, with the exception of a few months, when another plan was tried as an experiment: Nearest the door come the papers which are most read and those which are preserved for binding, and must therefore be under the closest observation to prevent mutilation; after these come the papers of the other cities in alphabetical order, which would be the universal rule but for the considerations mentioned above.

Why do we not file the papers as in the Republican office? The answer to this is very simple; because they would not stay there three days. They would be either carelessly or designedly torn from the files. No one who has not had experience can imagine the expedients that must be adopted in a public library to prevent theft and destruction. These often involve departures from the best methods and cause inconvenience to innocent persons; but they are simply the least of two evils. It is much less annoying to have to turn over a few extra leaves to find the desired page than repeatedly to discover that the paper is gone altogether. Trusting that your correspondent and the interested public will find this reply sufficiently full and satisfactory, I am, very respectfully,

Frederick M. Crunden, Librarian.

The Public School Library.

St. Louis, October 31, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In reply to Mr. Crunden's card published in your last evening's issue, I will say that my reason for bringing the matter before the public is that the management of a "Free Reading-room," paid for by the people, is something that concerns them quite as much as it concerns me individually, and also that the public mention of an evil is the swiftest and surest method of remedying it. It would, therefore, have been more satisfactory and appropriate had Mr. Crunden fully answered the objections made instead of glossing them over in the manner he does. He pleads a disinclination to trespass on your space, but I have no doubt that as you printed the complaint you would afford him an equally fair opportunity of replying. He suggests that I should have applied to the attendant for the papers that had been removed from files. Apart from the unnecessary trouble it will be self-evident why I did not do so when I inform him that I actually did make such an application some time ago and was taken to a dimly-lighted apartment in the rear of the library, where I spent a good portion of an hour hunting through a lot of papers "carefully put away" in a promiscuous heap. As Mr. Crunden's system of filing the papers is so "readily understood," why did he not give us a brief description of it? Why did he not favor us with a "reasonable explanation" of the miserable manner in which the papers are crowded together, while a considerable amount of space intended for them is taken up by a lot of pictures that nobody looks at and a number of weeklies that nobody seems to read? What "system of convenience" is that? Our worthy librarian also fails to inform us why a simple system of filing, such as that used in the Republican office, for instance (where the pages of even back numbers follow one another in correct numerical order) is not found in a large public reading-room. I do not care to discuss this matter any further, and will close by saying that when Mr. Crunden came out in print he should have made a candid reply to my letter and not attempted to dodge inconvenient questions (that concern everybody) by having you advise me to call on him for personal "redress."

Exchange Memberships.

St. Louis, November 2, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In yesterday's Post-Dispatch is a communication on Exchange memberships. It is absolutely necessary that some action be taken regarding them. The vote on redemption failed because it was put at a time when many friends of the measure were absent from the city, during the summer vacation. The suggestion I offer is to make a presidential issue of this matter. Let some candidate declare himself in favor of redemption or a mutual benefit society. Under the redemption scheme it took a two-thirds vote; to elect a president it requires only a majority. In Chicago and New York, where the redemption plan has been tried, it has proven a success. In Chicago a few years ago Exchange memberships were worth $300, and to-day they are worth $5,000, and scarce at that. The same action was taken in New York with similar results. As compared with the Chicago Exchange ours is nothing more than a bucket-shop. There it means something to belong to the Merchants' Exchange. Sales of memberships have lately been made here at $190. The result is that scalpers and speculators are buying them in at this ridiculous figure, well knowing that at some time the Exchange will be forced to put a higher real value on memberships. A great many persons have paid $500 for memberships, but when the Exchange raised the value to $2,500 it was too much of a good thing, and they could be bought on the outside at low prices. It is the duty of the Exchange to regulate this evil. If the moss-back members will aid, the proper measures can be taken and carried. If those who desire to become members are too poor to buy, they can always rent one by paying dues, and if they can't do that they have no use for the floor of the Exchange. Mr. MacGinnitie, your followers ask you to show yourself and come again to the front in this matter. You will get all the support you want.

St. Louis, November 1, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We cannot fall in with your valuable paper in wholesale abuse of Gov. Crittenden. Over abuse creates sympathy, especially where the charges against the accused are not clearly proven. The St. Louis Gas Light Company would be a much better theme that would be a subject that would come home to the masses. The interesting corporation known as the St. Louis Gas Light Company actually filches from the pockets of its consumers (by overcharging), rich and poor alike, thousands upon thousands of dollars every month. There is no doubt about this proposition. There are several suggestions we should like to make on this interesting theme; but for fear of trespassing at too great a length upon your valuable space, we withhold, with best wishes for your enterprising journal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Reading your report of the visit of the Select Senate Committee on Mississippi improvement, I should like to have some of the good and wise men who are working up this thing to enlighten my ignorance on the following point: Spossu' the Mississippi River is improved to give us twenty feet of water from here to Cairo, will it be of any benefit to St. Louis generally, or will the benefit all be gobbled up by those two cheerful monopolies, the Anchor Line of Steamboats and the Gould Line of barges? I pause for a reply.

THE KILBOURNE CASE.

Attracting a Good Deal of Attention at the Capital.

Kilbourne, the Associate of "Stils." Hutchins, Bill Dickson, Brady and Dorsey—How He Made a Cord of Money—His Suit Against the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, October 31.—The case of Hallett Kilbourne against John G. Thompson, on trial in the courts here this week, is attracting a good deal of attention, both by reason of the prominence of the cause itself and the lack of more exciting topics. Washington is lost without some excitement. When Congress is not in session and when there is no Star Route trial or Guiteau case there is a dullness, and a trial of even a case of moderate importance is hailed as an event of interest. Even a decision requiring a dairyman to remove his milk establishment to such location as will not annoy people with its sights and sounds and smells is made the occasion of a considerable amount of excitement. The court-room in the Kilbourne case is crowded. The case bids fair to be a celebrated one, and, as its chief actors are people of national reputation, why should it not be? John G. Thompson is known everywhere that there lives a Democrat with hopes and faith; Hallett Kilbourne has had more or less fame—usually less—for some years; Dan Voorhees, the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash; Col. Corkhill, of whom a great many unkind things are said, but who probably might be a worse man than he is. There are also some lesser lights, men of larger ability but not so prominent in the case or in the public eye, and not so much asked after by spectators.

Kilbourne, the principal figure in the case, is a well preserved man-about-town sort of person in appearance, probably on the other side of fifty, a blonde, smooth faced, except as to a stubby mustache, an associate of such men as Stilson Hutchins, Bill Dickson, Col. Corkhill, Brady and Dorsey, and others whose names might be mentioned. Of course everybody remembers that he was charged with being in "cahoots" with Boss Shepherd, and that the latter gentleman was a silent partner in the firm of Kilbourne & Latta, real estate dealers; that it was further charged that this "ring," being kept posted by Shepherd as to what streets were to be opened and improved, went ahead and bought property in great quantities in those localities, making cords of money by this operation; that this was thought to be a rather improper thing by Congress in 1876, which ordered an investigation, and when Kilbourne refused to produce the books of his firm for the committee, for contempt. If these facts are not remembered, it will at least be remembered that Mr. Kilbourne took advantage of his incarceration to get several square meals at the expense of the Government, the bill for his feeding running up to fifteen or twenty dollars a day, and aggregating something like $1,000 during the time of his incarceration. Not content however, with this, he brought suit against John G. Thompson, who was then Sergeant-at-Arms of the House, for damages for false imprisonment, putting his damages at perhaps $150,000. Of course nobody thought he would get any considerable sum, and of course everybody was surprised when he got a verdict of $100,000. If there were any intimations that the hand of Bill Dickson had been seen in the make up of the jury, that fact has now passed from the recollection of your correspondent, be the cause and result as it may, the judge set the verdict aside as excessive and unwarranted by the facts in the case, whereat there was a general clapping of hands, constructively, by all good citizens, Hallett Kilbourne excepted. For a case of unadulterated and double distilled "gall" the course then pursued by Mr. Kilbourne probably captured the confectionery. He amended his petition and demanded $350,000. It is on the amended petition that this case is being tried. The room in which Kilbourne was confined at the Capitol during a part of his imprisonment, is a small, square dungeon, located in the basement of the building, with grated windows, a damp and unwholesome odor, and has held in durance at times such noted persons as Red-headed Jim Anderson of Louisiana, Madison Wells of the same State, who wanted to know whether he was a vassal or a peer, another gentleman charged with being the distributing agent in the Credit Mobilier incident, and others of like savory repute. It has even been asserted that Kilbourne was for a short time immured in the "crypt," deep down in the dark recesses beneath the great building, a vault prepared by the builders of the Capitol for the remains of Washington, but never used; but this is probably an error. The crypt is understood to have never been used for any purpose, except as a depository for the catafalque upon which the remains of Lincoln and Stevens and Chase and Garfield lay in state in the great rotunda directly above.

ORDERED HIM IMPRISONED

KILBOURNE, THE PRINCIPAL FIGURE

in the case, as intimated above, is a smooth blonde, a man of the world, who lives in good style at the Portland, and sending his family abroad quite often manages to get his and their names into print with commendable regularity. They are now in Europe, and the public is informed through the medium of the Sunday papers as to their whereabouts. Dan Voorhes, who is Kilbourne's chief adviser and counsel, is well known to the public as one of Indiana's Senators and a vigorous Democrat. He is six feet high, has a voice like a calliope, and reddish chin whiskers. Thompson, the defendant in the case, is not so tall as Voorhes, not so much of a blonde as Kilbourne, but is fatter than both of them. He is a good fellow, a gentleman, and is likely to be the sergeant-at-arms of the next House. He has the reputation of having been an excellent officer when in that position. Col. Corkhill, who in his position as District Attorney represents the Government, is not as thoroughly beloved of the people of Washington as some that might be mentioned. Nevertheless he wears good clothes, attends to his duties with some vigor, and certainly wrote a very pretty and commendable letter about the swindling pension agents the other day. He is probably not one of those who are born great, and his greatness seems to have been thrust upon him through a relative who sat on the Hayes Electoral Commission, and who afterwards reluctantly consented that his nephew should be made District Attorney. Corkhill is not a handsome man; his face is too dark and round and greasy in its appearance, and his mustache too stubby. Col. Totten, who assists Voorhees, is a trim figure, with a face indicating great vigor and shrewdness, a good looking gray mustache, and a bald head fringed with gray hair. He is probably the handsomest man in the case. Col. Corkhill is assisted by Messrs. Shellabarger and Wilson, who are so well known as attorneys of standing that anything about them personally is unnecessary.

An incident of some note in the trial thus far is the bringing to light of a letter written by Matt Carpenter to Mr. Kilbourne in regard to

to protect his own private business from the gaze of even a Congressional committee. In it he says: "It has been said that God and one man are a majority—that is, one man right is stronger than one man wrong. One man right in a country where the rights of one man are of no particular consequence, is not a match for the House of Representatives wrong. Whether we shall ever realize in this country the conscientious regard paid to individual rights in Great Britain is uncertain. Certain it is we do not enjoy the blessing at present. I concur with Judge Black, that, though you are in the right, you cannot successfully cope with the House of Representatives wrong. That is, you cannot successfully protect your rights against so powerful a body resolved to trample them under foot."

Judge Black wrote at the same time: "The transaction which the House wants to investigate is not only private but innocent. But you refused to tell it as a mere assertion of your right to refuse. You wished to vindicate the great legal principle that a man's private papers and business are sacred. Your conduct was laudable, proper and magnanimous."

On Account of Her Husband's Family.

A suit for divorce was instituted to-day by Alice Schaller against Jules Schaller. The parties were married in this city on December 24, 1877, and lived together until October 1, 1883. The plaintiff alleges that soon after their marriage the defendant took her with him to reside with his own family, which consisted of his mother, niece and two nephews, and told her he would require her to do the work for the entire household. When she protested against this requirement he asked her if she would do the work for twenty dollars a month. When she protested a second time and suggested that he ought to rent a house and go to housekeeping with her on their own joint account, he threatened to kill himself, and on more than one occasion when her suggestion was renewed he pulled out a pistol or a knife and made believe that he was going to take his life then and there. The result was that Mrs. Schaller did all the work for her husband's family for about two years. At the end of that time the two families separated and then the defendant became more abusive than ever. He applied indecent language to the plaintiff and on one occasion he assaulted and choked her. On October 1 of this year she got tired of his conduct and left him.

AN AUSTRO-AMERICAN

The Treatment Mr. John Bauer of St. Louis Received in Austria.

"If You are Married, Without an Austrian Marriage License, Your Marriage is Void"—Four Months Spent in an Austrian Military Prison—A Highly Interesting Narrative.

Mr. John Bauer, for ten years past a carrier for the Westliche Post, is an Ausrian subject by birth, but an American citizen by election. He returned recently from a visit to his old home in the dominions of his Austrian Majesty Franz Josef, utterly disgusted with the treatment he received while there. Mr. Bauer left his birthplace, Vorarlberg, Austria, on April 17, 1871, in order to come to America. Being a young man he was subject to military duty in the Austrian service. His enrollment ought to have taken place on October 15 of the same year. But the privilege of serving the house of Hapsburg in the field was one which he very cheerfully resigned. His condition in the United States was so pleasant that he never gave thought to European affairs, as they might affect him personally, but rather studied how to qualify himself for citizenship in the Great Republic.

Until 1876 he never ceased to receive from the military authorities in his old home reminders of his liability to unfulfilled military duty, but he threw them into the waste basket or the fire, and never thought of it again. During the same year he wrote his father that he had found existence in the United States so agreeable that he had made up his mind to stay here.

THE RESULT

was that his name was stricken from the roll of the Austrian Army, and he concluded that that was the end of the whole matter. In 1880 Mr. Bauer became a naturalized citizen of the United States. Last spring he made up his mind to pay his relatives and friends in the old country a visit. Previous to leaving St. Louis, however, he sought out the Austrian Consul here, Mr. Diehm, in order to obtain papers that would exempt him from annoyance while he might be within the Austrian borders. Mr. Diehm advised him by all means to procure a passport, but intimated that the doing so might delay his departure five or six days. Bauer replied that he would not wait, and then Diehm consoled his visitor with the observation that strangers are not subjected to the same surveillance as in Germany, and that it was altogether likely an American citizen's naturalization papers would insure perfect freedom of movement. Accordingly Mr. Bauer left St. Louis for Europe on May 15 last. On the 9th of June his foot touched its native heath again, and two days afterwards he was arrested by Austrian gensdarmes as a deserter. From Vorarlberg, where his arrest was effected, he was taken to Feldkirch and thence by rail to Bregenz, where he remained in durance vile for thirteen days. From Bregenz he was transferred to Innsbruck, and was compelled to make the journey over the mountains on foot and under police escort. The trip lasted six days, and, as may be imagined, was extremely disagreeable. At Innsbruck Mr. Bauer, who, since his arrest, had been treated with as many indignities as though he was a criminal of the lowest class, was taken before the chief judicial officer of the place. To this personage

MR. BAUER TOLD HIS STORY,

and ventured to insist that he had certain rights, even in Europe, as an American citizen, which European courts were bound by international comity to respect. Following is the reply hurled at the astonished Mr. Bauer by the Austrian Dogberry:

"It would appear that in America every worthless character," ("Lump" was the expressive German word he used), "can become a citizen without the smallest difficulty. If you married in America, your marriage is a nullity, and your children, if you have any, are bastards. All this follows from your failure to obtain an Austrian marriage license." After Mr. Bauer had been in Innsbruck eleven days, he and his two-fellow travelers, one of whom was a young New Yorker, were before a court-martial. The same Dogberry who had insulted every naturalized American man, woman and child in the person of Mr. Bauer, was the presiding Judge. The sentence imposed by the court-martial was imprisonment in jail for a term of four months. The luckless Americans were to be placed on a bread and water diet two days in a dark cell in every week, and to solitary confinement for two other days. Mr. Bauer's father exerted himself to his utmost to compass his son's enlargement, but without avail. He even forced himself into the presence of Austrian majesty, itself, but the ears of the Hapsburg Kaiser were deaf to every representation made in the prisoner's behalf. The latter would have had to serve out the entire term had it not been for the fact that the Crown-Princess Stephanie brought into the world an heir to Austria's greatness during the summer months and which was extended to prisoners in celebration of the joyful event reached out and lifted Mr. Bauer and his friends into the light of free day once more. When this most happy accident occurred, there remained to the American prisoners still fourteen days of confinement. As a gracious work of royal favor ten days of this period was remitted in the name of the newest Hapsburg and the Americans were released. The doors of the prison were thrown open on September 29, just sixteen weeks after they closed upon the Americans. The same "Dogberry" who had intervened between Mr. Bauer and his asserted rights as an American citizen now graciously intimated that Mr. Bauer might enlist in the Austrian service, but the proposition was declined with thanks and he promptly turned a contemptuous back upon his native land. He reached New York, October 8th, and returned promptly to St. Louis. His experience ought to serve as a warning to other naturalized American citizens not to venture too near to European authority.

A LITTLE BILL.

The City Ought to Get Two per Cent of the Gross Earnings.

At the meeting of the House of Delegates this evening the electric light ordinance will come up for second reading. It is an ordinance granting to Chas. P. Chouteau, Pierre Chouteau, John N. Bofinger, Daniel Catlin, John T. Davis, Geo. E. Leighton, Hugh McKittrick, C. C. Maffitt, Jas. W. Branch, Chas. Parsons, and J. E. Liggett, their assigns and successors, the right to construct, maintain and operate in and along, over and under the streets, alleys and public places of the city of St. Louis, wires, tubes or cables for the purpose of conveying electricity for lighting, power and other purposes. The other sections provide that the wires are to be laid as the Board of Public Improvements may require.

A bond of $50,000 to indemnify the city is to be given. Then section 7 provides: "The said Chas. P. Chouteau et al. shall pay to the city of St. Louis two cents for each lineal foot of main conductor or tube (or its equivalent in wire or cable) laid in the streets, avenues, alleys, sidewalks or public grounds of the city."

This ordinance is being quietly pushed. It will bear a little investigation. It proposes to give to the city a bonus of $105 60 per mile, in full, for the privilege, this in view of the fact that there is an ordinance on the books, approved March 30, 1882, which prohibits the stringing of electric wires over the streets, provides that they be placed underground, and further provides that any electric lighting or illuminating company shall pay annually 2 per cent of its gross receipts to the city.

"EARTH TO EARTH."

The Funeral of N. S. Chouteau from the St. Alphonsus' Church.

The funeral of Norbert Sylvester Chouteau, the grandson of Col. Auguste Chouteau, the founder of St. Louis, took place this morning from St. Alphonsus' Church, on Grand avenue, at 9:30 this morning. On the cortege entering the sacred building the casket was received by the clergy, and slowly carried to the altar, the following gentlemen acting as pall-bearers: Augustus B. Ewing, Charles R. Chambers, David Clarkson, Charles R. Chambers, Edward Walsh, Dr. McCabe, Daniel E. Walsh, Frederick A. Churchill, Julius S. Walsh, Benjamin Von Phul, O. F. Delaney, Samuel Hoffman, B. M. Chambers and A. B. Pendleton. On the casket reaching the altar low mass was then celebrated by the Rev. Father Girradey, during which the following pieces were sung by the West End quartette, Messrs. Cook, Baker, Saler and Ellwanger: "Recordare," by Beethoven; "Dommi Jesu," by Hayden, and a requiem by Kucker. After mass the rite of solemn absolution was performed by the Rev. Father Brady of the Annunciation Church, to whose parish the deceased belonged. Father Brady was assisted by the Rev. Father Niethart and the Rev. Father Distler, as deacon and subdeacon respectively. After the rite of absolution the Rev. Father Brady delivered a brief but beautiful funeral address. The remains were then conveyed to Calvary cemetery. The floral offerings were numerous. The altar was completely surrounded with a mass of beautiful flowering and bright green foliage.

AMONG THE MOST STRIKING FEATURES

was a combined piece presented by the Elks, consisting of a cross covered with smilax, forming a background for a center wreath formed of roses and lilies. In the center of the wreath was seen peering through the flowers a carved emblem of an elk's head. The base was formed of loose foliage of palm leaves and ferns. A snow-white anchor gleamed amid the deep green leaves, and glossy foliage at the base with beautiful effect. The cross was five feet in height. On the top shone a snow-white crown of pure lilies.

Another striking floral feature was a large column presented by the University Club, of ivy leaves gracefully entwined with a winding wreath of silvery-looking flowers that curled up and hung over the broken summit, forming a delicate finish to the elaborate offering. An anchor, nestled in the leaves and foliage at the base; a broken column formed of ivy leaves, and delicately ornamented with appropriate flowers, was presented by the directors of the St. Louis Agricultural Society. Among the family offerings was an Easter cross, formed of dark, glossy leaves, with a garland of choice flowers encircling in drooping folds about the bars. A very beautiful design was a basket of dewy violets, forming a bank upon which reclined a number of pearl-of-the-garden roses. A large cluster of white nephitos roses, intermingled with clusters of violets, formed a lovely contrast. In addition to the above were numerous Maltese and other crosses, wreaths, anchors and crowns, with affectionate mementoes inscribed in purple immortelles on them.

Among those present were Mrs. Julius Walsh, Mrs. Mayor Ewing, Mrs. Augustus Ewing, John R. Lionberger, Mr. James Edwards, Mr. Chas. Filley and wife, John Harney and family, Mrs. Ben Von Phul, Mrs. Service, Mrs. Buck, Mr. and Mrs. McRee, Mrs. William M. Cook, the Misses Von Phuls, Fred. Von Phul, Mr. Chouteau Maffit and wife, Mrs. Julia Maffitt, Mrs. Capt. Lindsey, Mrs. Mary Boyze, Thomas E. Tutt, Mr. Lynch and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Dillon.

ABOVE CONTROL.

The Street Railroads Better Off Than the Property Owners.

Public attention has been called to the fact that street railroad companies in paving with granite the space between their rails are simply laying the blocks on sand, instead of on concrete, as is the case with the regular street improvement. A POST-DISPATCH reporter called upon Street Commissioner Turner this morning, and asked him why the street car people were permitted to lay pavements in the manner complained of. He replied that "the companies are totally independent of the city, and will so continue to be until an ordinance granting the necessary power. The companies are required to pay for the paving between rails, and to keep the same in repair. If they are laying a cheap pavement the loss will be theirs, in increased cost of repairs. As far as laying the blocks on sand is concerned, I don't know that it is objectionable. The use of concrete would be difficult on account of the stringers and cross-ties. I would prefer that they use a larger granite block, but, as I said, the board can do nothing with them at present. The courts so decided in the Washington avenue railroad case." President Flad made a similar statement, and intimated that the board would ask for an ordinance giving them control, or at least superintendence of work of this nature.

NO EVIDENCE.

John H. Vette Discharged by Judge Noonan To-Day.

The case of Delia Peyton against John H. Vette came up for trial this morning before Judge Noonan in the Court of Criminal Correction. The defendant, Vette, was discharged, Judge Noonan holding that the evidence did not sustain the charge of grand larceny which had been sworn out against him. The case has been frequently referred to in the newspapers on account of the story Mrs. Peyton told. She averred that John H. Vette took away $300 worth of property from her without leave or license, and that he continued to hold the property without any authority in law. Vette claimed, on the contrary, that he had a mortgage on the property given by Mrs. Peyton, the mortgage being for the sum of $40. Mrs. Peyton alleged that Mr. Vette never received a mortgage from her; that he procured his mortgage from another party. Mr. Vette declares that Mrs. Peyton signed the mortgage, and that he only acted under the law.

DARING ROBBERY.

A Negro Thug Attacks a Lady on Her Way to Market.

Harry Henley, a colored thug of the Third District, made a daring attempt yesterday noon at highway robbery. Mrs. Mary Brunell, residing at Twelfth and Wash streets, was on her way to Union Market to make some purchases. As she was going east on Morgan street, near Twelfth, the negro Henley attacked her and attempted to rob her of her pocketbook, containing $50. The lady screamed for assistance and held on to her pocketbook, but the negro succeeded in tearing her pocket and dress. In answer to Mrs. Brunell's screams Officers O'Harra and Hill responded, but had to make a considerable chase before they caught the negro, who was trying to make his escape up an alley. The case doubtless stands as the most daring attempt of the kind ever made in broad daylight in the Third District. This morning a warrant against Henley for highway robbery was sworn out.

THE annual meeting and election of eleven directors of the Concordia Turners' Hall Association will be held on the 13th at 8 p. m.

ANOTHER MONSTER!

This Time a Lady on Grand Avenue is the Victim.

She Finally Rids Herself of the Unwelcome Attendant That Had Annoyed Her For Six Years!

A lady of highly respectable connections, living on Grand avenue, for six years previous to last Saturday had not enjoyed a single day of rest or peace, but on that day the obnoxious cause to her long continued distress was removed so effectually that it will never return to terrorize her life again. The lady's health was so broken down that for three years past she has seldom ventured away from her room except to seek advice and treatment from those she thought best qualified to understand and aid her in the peculiar circumstances of her distressing condition. Two years ago, after the failure of some of the most eminent physicians of this city to relieve her physical sufferings, she went to Philadelphia, Pa., and remained six months under the treatment of one of the most noted physicians of that city, but he failed to do her any good, and finally acknowledged that he did not understand her case, that he had exhausted all his skill to discover the nature and requirements of her condition without success. She then had a consultation of five doctors, including the one who had treated her. After an examination of the case, and a long, learned consultation, they all agreed to pronounce the lady incurable, and with this comforting information sent her home to die. After arriving here she gave up the use of all remedies, with the exception of alteratives to regulate the action of the bowels, which were very much disordered. Aside from her physical sufferings, she was constantly harassed in her mind, and with alternate dread and impatience waited for death to come to her relief. Last week she read an article headed "A Monster Taken in St. Louis," which appeared in two of the daily papers. It decided her to make one more effort, if not for absolute emancipation from her torments, at least for the mitigation of her distress. Accordingly she called at the Everett House last Friday afternoon and stated her case. She suffered with dizziness, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart, bloating and tenderness with severe attacks of pain in the stomach and bowels, extreme nervousness, restlessness and general prostration, with many other distressing symptoms. She had been steadily declining in strength for a long time and was reduced to such a feeble and debilitated condition that she could not go out of the house without attendants. After a careful investigation the Drs. K & K Surgeons informed her that they had discovered the true cause of her trouble. She could not bring herself to believe them, but they prepared remedies for her to take at 8 o'clock the next morning, and gave her full instructions in regard to diet, etc. She went home and followed the directions carefully, and before noon the next day passed a monstrous tape worm of the species Tænia Mediocanelata. Since that time she has been entirely free from all the distressing symptoms which had harassed her life for so many years, and is now rapidly recovering her strength. The monster is carefully preserved in alcohol, and all persons who are in any way interested in the subject are invited to call at the Everett House, room 5, and see it, as it is the largest tape worm ever seen in this section, and, so far as we are informed by the records of the medical profession, the largest ever taken.

In answer to numerous inquiries we will here republish the report of the case of the Fourth street merchant from whom we took a tape-worm ninety-eight feet long some time ago. The following is the report as it appeared in the papers at that time: "Mr. J. D., a Fourth street merchant, had been failing in health for several years, and for the last five months had been unable to attend to business. He complained of pains, soreness and distress in his stomach and bowels, which would sometimes be relieved by eating. At other times he would suffer great pains for several hours after eating, with almost constant headache, sour stomach, nausea and vomiting. He had been treated for dyspepsia and liver disease; had dieted on oatmeal mush and Graham bread; worn liver pads, and said he had taken about a ton of pepsin and other articles prescribed by physicians to aid his digestion. He called on the Drs. K & K Surgeons, who made a thorough examination, prepared a single dose of medicine and gave instructions to take at 7 a. m. the next day. He followed the directions, and the next day at 11 a. m. called with a tape-worm ninety-eight feet long, in a bottle, which he said was expelled in less than two hours after taking the medicine."

Remember that everything depends on a correct diagnosis. If your ill-health is caused by a tape-worm, you should not derange your system by taking medicine for some other disease. Too many doctors never find out what ails their patients till they have nearly killed them by treating them for half a dozen different diseases. It is a comparatively easy matter to remove a tape-worm. There are thousands that can do it after they know that the patient has a worm, but it requires a skillful and experienced physician to diagnose obscure cases correctly, and treat the patient for the right disease without experimenting at the risk of the patient's life. If you are out of health, no matter whether it be on account of a tape-worm or some other cause, the first matter of importance is to secure the services of a physician who, by experience and skill, can determine the nature of your disease and treat you intelligently and successfully. Our experience in obscure and difficult cases has been so great that we can offer the greatest degree of encouragement to all, the afflicted. Come to us rather than waste time with worthless remedies or inexperienced doctors. No matter what your trouble is, we will treat you for the right disease at first and cure you without experimenting.

Four of the most skilled and experienced of The Drs. K & K Surgeons, Dr. J. C. Kennedy, Principal, are now at the Everett House, St. Louis, rooms No. 3, No. 5, No. 8 and No. 10, and will remain till December 22. Consultations are free, and examinations are free to all who desire treatment. The offices are supplied with all the moderate instruments and appliances for the critical investigation and successful treatment of every form of disease and deformity that affects man, woman or child. Charges reasonable for treatment. All remedies and appliances furnished. The Drs. K & K Surgeons are permanently located at 163 Elm street, Cincinnati, Ohio, and 631 Fourth avenue, Louisville, Ky. Those who cannot call on the doctors at the Everett House should write to The Drs. K & K Surgeons, 163 Elm street, Cincinnati, Ohio. All letters promptly answered and kept strictly confidential. Patients treated successfully by correspondence. Send two letter postage stamps for question blank and a copy of the ILLUSTRATED GUIDE TO HEALTH, a large, instructive paper, containing treatises on all diseases and articles on hygiene, diet, exercise, bathing, dress and the habits of life in general, with much valuable information for people of both sexes and all ages. A SHOT IN THE DARK.

BY GILBERT STEWART.

It was a 25-caliber and carried a leaden pellet no larger than a pea. It did not look very formidable, and in fact was not, but when Eva put it into what she was pleased to call her pistol pocket, in the rear of her dress, she felt as safe as if she had the escort of a regiment.

"What are you doing with that popgun?" said Cousin Jack to her one morning, as he observed her putting her armory in her pocket preparatory to going out.

"That's my beau, if you please, sir. He sees me safely along these four dark blocks when I come home at night."

"Just let me look at that gun, will you?" said Jack. "Pshaw! you couldn't hurt a mouse with it. Come, I'll let you shoot at me all day for a nickel a shot. Hurt me? Not a bit. But why in the name of the guardian angel of all young women do you want to carry a pistol?"

"Well, Cousin Jack, you know that it is late when I leave the store, and I cannot always have company. It's a dark walk from the cars over here, and I thought I saw a sneaking fellow follow me one night. I shall be ready for him the next time. I don't intend to be bothered or robbed, if I can help it. Don't think I can't shoot. I have been practicing a little, and shall make it very uncomfortable for the coming sand-bagger as sure as my name is Eva."

"But you couldn't hurt anybody with that thing, you know."

"Couldn't I? Don't you get in front of it, that's all. Good-by, I must hurry along."

Eva Barton was 23, and a saleswoman in the great establishment of Herschell, Shields & Co. She was rather under than over the medium size, somewhat slight in figure, but compactly formed, every gesture and movement denoting energy and character. Her cheeks were like lilies, and her eyes of limpid blue, such as Solomon would have described as being "like the fish-pools of Heshbon by the gate of Bathrabbin," that divine blue, capable of expressing every passion of the soul.

It was more in her expression than in her features that she was beautiful. She knew how to dress and had the art of bestowing the simplest ribbon or flower on her neck or hair in such a way as to lend elegance and refinement to her toilet. If she had been French they would have said she had chic. No English phrase can exactly describe what chic is, but we all know it when we see it. It is style and something more. It is the knack of doing or being in the best form. It is not fashion, but it is to fashion what poetry is to prose. It is entirely a feminine attribute, but all women do not possess it. When a woman has chic,

Age cannot wither her nor custom stale
Her infinite variety; other women
Cloy th' appetite they feed; but she makes hungry
Whom she satisfies.

She had come to the great city to make her own way in the world, not that she was obliged to, but because she wanted to. Her mother was dead. Her father's second wife was one of her schoolmates. Home was pleasant enough after a fashion, but a glimpse of the great world and business ways is a good thing for sensible girls. So Eva came and took up quarters with Aunt Bascom. Having some knowledge of ribbons and dry goods she got a place in Herschell, Shields & Co.'s, commencing at $5 a week. She was now getting $20, and was considered the best saleswoman in the store. She had such an art of displaying goods, of throwing them on her arm or over her shoulders, that the ladies were obliged to buy. They could not help it.

Cousin Jack, or, more properly, John Bascom, was teller in the Southwestern National. He was 25, and was perfectly loyal to one woman—that was his mother. Whatever he did he did for her.

"I don't think I shall ever get married," Jack would say to himself. "They come too high, and besides I don't see any like my mother." Toward his cousin Eva he had always felt in a paternal sort of way, and would deal out to her large chunks of fatherly advice, fitted for almost any occasion.

The pistol episode amused Jack not a little. He went to bed that night with his head full of undefined practical jokes, but all having a sort of centerpiece in Eva and her pistol.

It was only at the breakfast table that the family met, for Eva took her lunch at the store, and was always late at dinner.

The next morning Jack commenced on Eva:

"Well, my Amazonian little saleslady, did you slay any sand-baggers last night?"

"I am not a saleslady, I want you to know, Cousin Jack."

"What! been promoted again?"

"No, I am not promoted, and I am not a saleslady. I am a saleswoman. If there is one word I despise more than another, it is saleslady. Do you say salesgentleman? I suppose you are a tellergentleman in the Southwestern?"

"No," said Jack, "I am a gentlemanly teller."

"You may joke, but I tell you I abominate saleslady. Why can't girls and women have as much sense as men? Are we to say kitchenlady, cooklady?"

"Every woman is a lady by her right of sex," said Jack.

"Doubtless that is true, but why should we American girls be so distrustful as to be constantly announcing ourselves as ladies? We are ladies if we act suitably to whatever place we are in. Others may call themselves saleladies, if they choose, but for myself I am a saleswoman, and when it is necessary to refer to me in that capacity I prefer to be called so. Think of a man advertising for a place as salesgentleman. He would get it, I guess!"

"Bravo! bravo! my belle cousin. Another new departure. Here is a saleswoman, armed cap-a-pie. Well may the philosopher ask, whither are we tending? Are there any more young women in your store of your mind?"

"Yes, a few; but the great majority prefer to be salesladies."

"I hope, coz, you don't consider yourself a woman with a mission?"

"No, sir; I am not a woman with a mission. The strongest points about my sex are their weaknesses, and one of their weaknesses is to be called salesladies. I don't believe I could reform that out of them if I tried. I like the name lady. It implies dignity, refinement and good breeding. Don't let us drag it in the mire. Every saleswoman can be a lady if she chooses, but she is not a lady simply because she stands behind a counter and sells goods to customers. Saleslady! Sales fiddlesticks!" and Eva started up and off with an energy that almost made Jack's head swim.

Soliloquized Jack: "The pistol idea is not a good one. She must give that up. She'll hurt herself some time, and then I should reproach myself. I can't argue her out of it, that's certain; but I shall find a way."

Jack continued in a brown study nearly all day. In the evening he came home to dinner, but strolled out immediately after. He had an idea and he was going to work it out.

Eva left the store as night was falling. She had a long ride in the car, and by the time she reached her crossing it was pitch dark, and the scattered gas lamps only tended to make the darkness more visible. She was not a timid girl, but she never did like that long walk alone at night. Quietly adjusting her dress and putting her hand in her pistol-pocket, she started forward. As she did so she saw a figure stealing along the opposite side of the street and then crossing toward the path she must take. She hurried along, and so did the figure, now in front of her. When she slackened her pace, so did the figure. The street was deserted, but Eva gave her pistol a tighter grip and moved on courageously. Just as they got to the middle of the darkest block the figure turned and came toward her. It loomed up in the darkness like a giant. She spoke quickly, "Out of my way, sir!" No answer.

Crack went the little pistol.

The figure never heeded it.

Crack again.

"Great Scott! Eva, do you want to kill me?" howled Jack, as he felt a sharp pain rush through his upper arm. "Great Scott! put up that gun. Don't you know me? Jerusha! Whew! You've blown my arm off. Don't you know me?" And Jack capered around on the sidewalk holding his arm while the warm blood commenced to trickle out at his cuff.

Eva stood almost dazed.

"Oh, John, why did you not speak? Why did you act so? Have I hurt you? Are you killed? Are you dying? What shall I do? Come, hurry home; don't die here in the street; let me carry you; let me support you. It's only a short way home. Here, lean on me."

And Eva clasped him around the body and rushed him forward. Jack felt as if he was being wafted through the air by fairies. They hurried up the steps and into the house. Mrs. Bascom met them.

"Why, children, what is the matter? John is as pale as a ghost. What is it, Eva? Look at John's hand, all covered with blood. Where have you been, and what has happened?"

They jerked off Jack's coat and rolled up his sleeves. Sure enough, there was a little bullet-hole in the fleshy part of the upper arm. It had gone through but touched no bones. It was not very serious, and Mrs. Bascom soon dressed and bound it up. As Jack marched off to his room he looked at Eva humorously and said:

"You can now see that pistol is of no account."

"There were four more charges in it, Cousin Jack."

"I believe I don't want any more of them to-night. I hope I can use my arm to-morrow."

Jack laid awake a long time thinking over the matter. He had been very stupid. He felt that. What would Eva think of him? And what a girl she was! What intrepidity and character! That girl is a treasure, thought Jack, as he floated off into the land of dreams.

As for Eva, she did not sleep a wink. She could hardly accuse herself of wrong, and yet she could not excuse herself. To think that she had wounded Jack was terrible. She might have killed him. Even now he might lose his arm. How dreadful! And on her sleepless pillow she upbraided herself the whole night through. One thing she determined to do. As soon as it appeared that Jack's arm was all right she would return home.

Jack appeared at the breakfast table, his arm somewhat stiff and sore, but not much more painful than if he had been newly vaccinated. He tried a feeble joke or two, but both Eva and Mrs. Bascom felt too serious for much conversation.

"Eva thinks she will go home," said Mrs. Bascom.

"What?" said Jack, a sharp pain running quickly through his breast, sharper than the pain in his arm.

"Eva says she will return to Blackwater in a day or two."

"I don't think you ought to, Cousin Eva."

"Yes, John, I think I must."

A little later Jack and Eva were standing side by side in the parlor.

"I suppose, Eva, it may be best for you to return home for the present; but do you know I am wounded incurably?"

"Don't say that. Oh, it can't be so!"

"Not in my arm, dearest, but in my heart."

"Oh, Jack!"

"And if you go home now, may I come for you soon and make this your home?"

Eva looked up into Jack's eyes, her own full of light and love, and gently whispered:

"Yes, John."

"Then," said Jack, as he clasped her in his arms, "It was the luckiest shot in the dark I ever heard of."

Demurrage Charges.

During the busy part of the present year the Gould and Wabash shippers have suffered greatly by loaded cars remaining on side tracks awaiting the owner of the goods to unload them. Clamors for empty cars have been loud on the part of the shipper, and the demurrage charges failed to correct the evil. To compel a more rapid attention to unloading the following circular was issued and sent out last night:

"THE MISSOURI PACIFIC R'Y CO. AND
"WABASH, ST. LOUIS AND PACIFIC R'Y,
"ST. LOUIS., October 31, 1883,

"To agents and shippers:

"As the ability of these, as of all lines, to promptly meet demands of shippers for cars to load and move the constantly increasing traffic of the country depends greatly upon the promptness with which agents and shippers dispose of or unload contents of cars which have been transported to the waybill destinations, and as the transportation departments of these lines have had of late frequent occasion to complain of delay on the part of the agents and consignees in unloading cars of their loads, attention is hereby especially called to the necessity of the exercise of close attention to this important requirement.

"Agents are at all times expected to exercise proper judgment in attending to this duty. Shippers must always be afforded the most liberal accommodation consistent with the interests of these companies. Urgent need of cars will necessarily demand restrictive action on the part of agents in affording shippers time to unload cars, but in the exercise of such action the rights of shippers must not be overlooked. In such cases, it will generally prove beneficial, both to the shippers and to the carrier, to use the argument that unless cars are promptly unloaded, it will be impossible for us to supply demands for empty cars. As it will be far more to the interests of the railroad companies to be in a position to supply promptly all demands for empty cars than to exact and collect demurrage from shippers who neglect to promptly unload cars, so it will be found more satisfactory to all shippers to co-operate with us, rather than to be called upon to pay demurrage charges.

"Agents, when dealing with unreasonable shippers, those who cannot, by fair argument or persuasion be induced to consider ours and the rights of those who may be clamoring for cars to load, must enforce the demurrage charge and collect the same, and in case of complaint on the part of those who may be negligent, refer such to this office for satisfaction.

THE PUMP CASE.

Judge Treat Decides it Adversely to Defendant on a Few Points.

In the United States Circuit Court, this morning, Judge Treat rendered the following decision in the somewhat celebrated patent case of the National Pump Cylinder Company vs. the Simmons Hardware Company:

"As counsel stated that this was a test case, it is to be regretted that all the facts and circumstances were not presented free from constantly recurring exceptions on technical points, as to the admissibility of evidence. It is, or should be, the purpose of parties to have the merits of the controversy settled. The first question is as to the validity of the reissued patent, on the ground that the same was an undue expansion of the original. Plaintiff objected that the original had not been introduced on its part, so that the question presented could not, technically, be considered. The Court permitted, under objection, the original to be introduced. The reasons therefor were many, without enumerating all of which, one must suffice, viz., that it was essential for the court to be informed exactly as to the nature and extent of plaintiff's demand in order to determine which the original of the reissue had to be before the court. An examination of the original and the reissue shows that the latter is not invalid, for it is for the same invention. Plaintiff rests his demand upon the second claim of the reissue, viz.: 'The metal tube section or working barrel (B) coated with a vitreous substance and constructed 'with flaring ends, and receiving into said end the lower terminus of the section A and the upper terminus of the lower section B all substantially as described.' Strange to say the same error is in the original, and the reissue to which the attention of the court was not directed by counsel, viz., that 'the upper terminus of the lower section,' (there being three sections, A, B, C, respectively, should have been named 'B' instead of 'C.' Treating that false description as an obvious error, the court construes plaintiff's patent to be for a metal tube, with vitreous coating internally, each end of which is flared so as to admit within it from above and below the wooden tubing with which it was to be connected. Three sections are contemplated, the upper and lower of which are wooden, and the intermediate (the one in question) metalic. To avoid 'the use of belts, screws or other fastening devices,' and make the connections by 'frictional contact,' merely as the patent claims, the flaring of the metal tube at both ends became the connecting factor. There had been various contrivances before the date of the patent, more or less complicated, some by screws and some by drums or otherwise, to make the desired extensions and connections in sectional pumps. The merit of this patent, if any, was in having the metal tube described inserted with flaring ends between the upper and lower sections of wood tubing, whereby without bolts, screws, etc., the different sections would be connected by 'frictional contact' solely, and the metal tube become a water chamber in which the valved plunger could operate with attendant advantages. Inasmuch as the patent for the tube in question is all that is claimed, it is evident that its construction is essential. The patent in question is not for a "combination" and what is specified as to its use is merely to indicate its adaptability to pumps, and to state its special advantages therefor. It must therefore be considered as designated, its peculiar features being its two flaring ends, whereby the advantages named will be secured. It is not purposed to go into details as to the state of the art or prior patents, because it seems in this, as in many other inventions, that persons previously groped their way along the needed path making and abandoning experiments and failing short of the hoped for result, while in the light of what a subsequent inventor disclosed it appears strange that they should not have seen what now is so clear and simple. The patent is held to be valid, and to be for the indicated tube with flaring ends, that is at each end. Has defendant infringed? The difficulty in the case arises under this head. The evidence in the main point is meager, viz: Did he sell tubes with the two-fold flares or only with one flare? It seems that, following old contrivances, metal tubes with a flare at one end only are now in use, the upper end of which is thrust into the wooden pump stock, instead of the reverse; the other end flaring, to receive the lower section of the pump when needed. Before the date of the original patent metal tubes or sections were used with converging flares, so as to pass within wooden stocks reamed out for the purpose, thus forming a continuous pump or tubing, where length was required. The difficulties and disadvantages appearing, plaintiff's invention of a double and divergent flaring, whereby through frictional contact a firm connection of the parts can be made, and a proper water chamber had, is simple in its terms. Must it rest, then, on its precise terms, the double flare, or be held to exclude all enameled tubes which have a flare at one end alone, designed for either interior or exterior connection with wooden pipes? The special water chamber which results from plaintiff's invention is a separate chamber between the upper and lower pipes, necessarily larger than either of said pipes. It may be that some disadvantages would result, if the plunger were to be repaired, because the upper or pump stock would have to be detached therefor. Under the prior arrangements in metal-lined pumps, where no such enlarged chamber was provided, the plunger worked freely and could be easily removed and repaired without detaching the upper from the second parts. It seems that most of the cylinders sold by defendant followed the old and well-known plan, viz., the thrusting into a pump-stock of a metallic tube, in which the plunger worked freely, said tube being the water chamber. As to said tubes with the single flare, it is held that there was no infringement, and that the sale and use of the indicated metallic tubes with the double flare, or flares at both ends, did infringe the plaintiff's rights. It will thus be seen that the plaintiff's patent is held to be solely for a metallic cylinder, with vitreous lining, and diverging or outward flaring at both ends; and that, as there is evidence showing that some, a few it might be, of such cylinders were bought and sold by the defendant, a decree against him must be entered, framed according to this opinion, with an accounting accordingly, and be referred to the master in chancery, unless an agreement with respect thereto is made by the parties."

HENRY HALLAM, St. Louis, Mo., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters afforded me great relief in dyspepsia."

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

The meetings at the Methodist Church are increasing in interest so rapidly that Dr. Hughey announces a probability of a continuance of them for several weeks.

Wm. Doty, 59 years of age, an engineer at the Vulcan, fell from a trestle yesterday afternoon and broke his right collar bone. He was taken to his residence and Dr. Outten called.

The grand officers of the Order of U. O. A. D. were here last night and installed the officers of De Soto Lodge, No. 14. Zavier Meyer, E. E.; F. A. Sick, W. E.; R. Frank, Sec., and John Krauss, treasurer, were installed.

J. H. Bobing drove in yesterday from the country, and left his vehicle a short time on Main street. It was there long enough, however, for Dan Connell to carry off from the wagon a horse-blanket. He did not long enjoy his prize, and this morning was fined $25 and costs and sent to the Work House. He pleaded the necessities of the case, as winter was coming on, but the Judge relented not.

F. W. Mott is back from Washington and he was probably never before aware of how many friends he has. It was really touching at the Chouteau avenue depot yesterday to witness the devotion exhibited and the hearty congratulations and warm shakes he received. It is true that a few carping critics were unkind enough to say that a good deal of the manifestation was on account of the "loaves and fishes" Mr. Mott has for distribution as Water Commissioner, but there are always some cranky critics to be found.

"In the Ranks," a New Production on the New York Stage Last Night.

Mapleson's Contract for the Cincinnati Musical Festival—Effie Ellsler's Failure as a Star—Professional Opinions of Irving and Terry—The Local Theaters.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, November 2.—Mr. Mapleson sat in his office yesterday, with wrinkled brow and with a pile of letters and telegrams in front of him.

"Did you ever know anything to equal this last move of Abbey's touching the Cincinnati festival?" he asked. "The idea of his stating that he had made a contract with Col. Nichols for the two weeks of the festival. Why, look here!" and Mr. Mapleson took out of a strongly-clamped box a huge document with two seals, about six inches in diameter, affixed thereto.

"Looks like a Magna Charta, doesn't it?" said he, "but it isn't. It is simply my first contract with the College of Music of Cincinnati, and the clause I wish to show you is this, to which, as you will see, I had a separate seal attached." Mr. Mapleson read off the clause, which provided that, should the festival prove a pecuniary success, Mr. Mapleson alone should have the

of the same. "Do you see?" he went on; "even if Abbey does give one week it will be by my license and under my direction, and then he actually says he will not allow his people to sing if I have anything to do with it. All bluff, my dear boy, all bluff. Here again is a telegram from Col. Nichols stating positively that he has made no contract at all with Abbey. I will tell you the facts about Abbey. When he was down here Nichols said to me that he had a fresh lot of directors, and some of them thought as there were two opera houses now in New York they should have them both at their festival. He therefore asked me if I would allow them to make terms with Abbey for a second week of festival. I assented with the proviso that they would

GUARANTEE ME $50,000

for my week, irrespective of any receipts. Besides my first contract with them, I have them in another way. I have spent over $200,000 on the improvements there and the raised stage, which cost $45,000, and all the fittings belong to me. Abbey is playing a dangerous game. I have been in the business a good many years, and can assure him that he has not yet tasted all the sweets of it. Why, as soon as I announced my Boston dates, he makes arrangements to play against me there. In Philadelphia, where I take the Academy of Music, he takes the Chestnut Street Theater, and so on. But as to this Cincinnati business, he is on the wrong track altogether." Mr. Mapleson's brow cleared as he announced that

MME. PATTI'S AGENT,

Franchi, was already here, and that the prima donna herself would positively sing next Wednesday. At the new Metropolitan Opera House it was learned that a telegram had been received on Wednesday night from Col. Nichols, and in answer a contract forwarded for signature.

A Dead Minstrel.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, November 2.—"Ricardo," the well-known female impersonator of the San Francisco Minstrels, died at the residence of his mother, in Brooklyn, on Wednesday, of Bright's disease of the kidneys.

Foley McKeever was the proper name of "Ricardo." He was born in Brooklyn thirty-four years ago. His first experience as a singer was in the choir of St. George's Church. He next secured an engagement with Kelly & Leon's Minstrels, remaining with them for about two years. He was with Hooley's Minstrels in Brooklyn for a short time, where he assumed all the parts in which Leon obtained popularity. For the last ten years he was with the San Francisco Minstrels. His last appearance was on Wednesday, October 24, in the part of "Electricity, a giddy fairy," in the burlesque of "Seltzer." "The Only Leon," who was the intimate friend and instructor of "Ricardo," said last night: "Foley was a steady, quiet, companionable fellow. He was a splendid imitator. His voice was naturally somewhat like a woman's, but he made it more so by singing falsetto. He was a very popular man with both the audience and the actors." The dead minstrel's funeral took place this morning from St. Agnes' Church, Brooklyn, and was attended by the entire San Francisco company.

The Ranks.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, November 2.—"In The Ranks," a melodrama by George R. Sims and Henry Pettitt, the plot of which has already appeared in your columns, was produced last night at the Standard Theater. It was observed with somewhat languid interest. More complete stage mechanism and more artistic scene painting have never been seen here. The cut wood scene in the first act, with real water-fall in the back ground, the overlapped brook and lanes of trees in perspective, and the moonlight bathing, all was a beautiful picture, and one not likely to be soon forgotten by any one who may see it. "The Village Church and Winter Arms" was another exquisite scene, while the drop in the last act, representing a country roadside at sunset, displayed artistic qualities by no means common in stage painting. The wonderfully quick and effective changes in the fourth and fifth acts were much admired and loudly applauded. Voegtlin was the scenic artist, and richly deserved the hearty call which he received.

The Effie Ellsler Failure.

The early rubbing out of the Effie Ellsler starring season and the calling home of the company by the managers, Messrs. Brooks & Dickson, will necessitate the changing of dates at the several places where she was billed. Her St. Louis engagement was to have been at the Grand Opera House, and in December. The week has been most auspiciously filled by Emily Rigl and Harry Lacey in "The Planter's Wife" being secured. This is one of the most popular and successful plays which has ever been brought to St. Louis, and will repeat the former success it achieved. Miss Ellsler has been quite a prominent figure on the boards for several years past. As the daughter of the veteran manager and actor, John Ellsler, her stage training was begun early and was complete and thorough. Petite and pretty, with a good stock of natural talent, she developed into a great favorite in Pittsburg and Cleveland, where her father managed theaters, and became, moreover, a clever actress. Her first starring experience was some seven or eight years ago, when she appeared as Rosalind and in characters of that ilk. In St. Louis she was supported by the regular stock company of the Olympic, and the leading man at that time was Frank Weston, who afterwards joined Miss Ellsler in one of the Madison Square companies and married her. Of late years Miss Ellsler starred in a drama by Bartley Campbell "A Heroine in Rags," which was not a success. She then became a member of the original Madison Square Theater Company, created the role of Hazel Kirke, and after appearing in it for a long time at the Madison Square played all over the country in the drama with Couldock, Gus Levick, Sidney Carroll, Whiffen and other well known artists, and made great success in the part. A very foolish rupture occurred a year or so ago when she objected to Harry Lee being made her leading support and insisted upon Gus Levick being retained as such. The Messrs. Frohman took a decided step, refused to be dictated to in the management of their affairs, and the result was the secession of Miss Ellsler and her husband from the company; and a very foolish move on their part it has proven. Miss Ellsler will have no trouble in placing herself in a good stock company, and the truth is it is the proper place for the exposition of her cleverness.

A Good Suggestion.

ST. LOUIS, November 1st, 1883.

Mr. John McCullough will be here on the 12th inst., remaining one week. He will appear on that date at the Olympic Theater. It has occurred to me that his St. Louis friends should on this occasion give him a grand first night of hearty congratulation in the theater that has been dedicated to him. At the end of the season last spring his health had become so much impaired as to cause the greatest concern to his friends, and doubts were freely expressed by many as to his ability to ever again appear upon the stage. These rumors have had more or less effect upon the public, and this necessarily has depressed our distinguished friend. It was in St. Louis he first made his appearance as a star; it is here congratulations upon the restoration of his health in the nature of an ovation on the first night of his appearance should be extended to him. A house full of friends should warmly greet him. With the object, therefore, of perfecting the details of this matter, I suggest that a meeting be held in the gentlemen's parlor of the Southern Hotel on the 3rd inst., at 8 o'clock p. m. of a number of gentlemen, to whom I have sent letters similar to this.

Respectfully,
THOS. W. FITCH.

Local Theaters.

Robson and Crane, at the Olympic, continue on a very placid sea of prosperity, their houses continuing very large. "Our Boarding-House" has proven one of their greatest "gos."

* * *

Callender's Minstrels drew a good house to Pope's last night, and the numbers of the bill met with general favor. It is a very clever exposition of what the darkey can accomplish on the stage.

* * *

"Fun on the Bristol" at the Opera House is pulling through tolerably, but if it comes this way again some fresh infusions of specialty blood will be needed; otherwise it will stagger to its timely demise.

* * *

Leavitt's Specialty Company is doing a a splendid business at the Standard, and deserves it. It is in all essentials one of the best variety performances seen here for a long time.

* * *

"Carrots" had a moderately good house last night, and Graham seemed to be equal to the occasion of amusing his audience. He has been well taxed this week, but has come out all right.

* * *

Edwards' Theater Comique proves a good half-way house for up and down-town amusement seekers. The attractions have been well selected and the house is gaining in popularity. The regular Friday matinee will be given to-day.

* * *

The matinees to-morrow will comprise: The Callenders at Pope's, "Fun on the Bristol" at the Grand Opera House, Leavitt's Specialty Company at the Standard, R. E. Graham and "Carrots" at the People's, Robson and Crane in "Our Boarding House" at the Olympic.

* * *

The multitude of attractions at Gregory's Museum on South Fifth street have resulted in a decided increase of business this week, and an hour or two can be passed there very pleasantly. The Museum is open from 1 to 10 p. m.

* * *

The present visit of the Callender Minstrels will probably be their last, as the Messrs. Frohman propose taking them to Paris in March, and then on a tour of the European capitals.

* * *

The sale of seats for the Emma Abbott season continued this morning, and there is a large and steady demand for tickets. The new opera, "A King for a Day," will have a good hearing, and the favorable impression it made last year will be improved by the improvements in cast, chorus and setting.

Professional Opinions.

Harry Lee wondered if any other actor would be permitted to live if he had Mr. Irving's faults.

Mr. Theodore Moss, who had not yet seen Irving, spoke enthusiastically of him from the front lobby.

Mr. Lester Wallack, who was carried to the theater, expressed his warmest admiration for Mr. Irving.

Mr. Edwin Booth, who was present in the cafe, smoking a cigarette, said that the play itself was so superb in its diction that the audience forgot to criticise the actor.

Steele MacKaye said that Mr. Irving was the most perfect stage mechanism in the world, and that nobody but a genius could act as he did with those legs.

Dr. Hermann Linde, the great German tragedian, remarked that he had never in his life seen worse acting. He said that Mr. J. B. Studly was a genius by the side of Irving.

John Gilbert said that the night before he had been unable to make up his mind as to the excellence of the performance. "But now," said he, "I perceive that Mr. Irving is a polished actor. 'The Bells' baffled me, 'Charles I.' convinced me."

"There are twenty women on the American stage to-day who can surpass Miss Terry," said a well-known play-goer. "Her voice is thin and she lacks strength in delineation." "Irving has peculiarities and mannerisms in voice and gesture that would hopelessly swamp any less well-known actor in ten minutes," said another who stood by him.

The New York WORLD, in its critique of October 31, gives the following opinions from well known professionals concerning Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry. William Warren, the Boston comedian said: "Miss Terry has more of the emotional temperament of Miss Clara Morris than any actress I can recall; but she strikes me as a greater actress. As for the play itself I have nothing but praise. Did one ever see before such perfect stage pictures?".

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please answer in your columns if it was not Hamlet who knew the true prince by instinct, and in what portion of the tragedy reference is made to it. FALSTAFF.

[Answer: You probably have reference to the scene between Falstaff and Prince Hal in the second act of "Henry IV." Polonius in his advice to Laertes says, "The apparel oft betrays the wearer," which is perhaps a similar reference.]

INQUISITIVE—Patti's salary last season was $4,500 for each performance or $9,000 for two performances a week. This year these respective amounts are advanced to $5,000 and $10,000.

A FEW MORE NEEDED.

St. Louis Looking After Some of the Allegheny Men.

The Sullivan's Coming—The New Race Track—Notes and Personals.

The latest twist the Allegheny matter has taken will probably result in St. Louis securing one or more good men she is in need of, and the probable result will be the formation of one of the best outfields the country has ever seen. It is possible that Mike Mansell will be secured in a few days, and, if it is possible, that either Swartwood or Hayes will be secured for the St. Louis team. Either one would be a great addition to the nine, which is already in fine shape, and requires but little additional strength to carry it through next year. The reports from Pittsburg at present are that Joe Battin will play third base and will manage the nine next year; that an effort will be made to retain Barr, Hayes, Creamer (who will stop stimulating), Swartwood, Neagle, Mansell, and an offer will be made to Russ McKelvey of Omaha; Billee Taylor has been released; Louis Dickerson has been allowed to sign in Baltimore, and Driscoll, whose health has not been good, is disengaged. A number of promising players from semi-professional clubs will be given trials, and the club will be re-inforced chiefly from these sources.

THAT SOUTHERN TRIP.

Mr. T. P. Sullivan, late manager of the St. Louis Club, is busily employed in getting his nine together for the proposed New Orleans trip, and says the team will be absent about two weeks. Thus far he is assured of Radbourne and Carroll, who were here with the Providence Club and are now at home at Rockford; of Joe Quest, Tony Mullane, Fred Lewis, and is in want of Nicol, Gleason, Deasley and McGinniss. Some of the men, however, are under promise to Mr. Von der Ahe to put in their time in the gymnasium, particularly McGinniss, who will require a special leave of absence to go South. All arrangements will be completed in a day or two, however, and the start will be made. Manager Sullivan says he will have no trouble in filling up his contingent as there are a number of professionals disengaged at present and are anxious to make the trip.

SPORTING SQUIBS.

Only one game was played yesterday in the pyramid pool tournament at Mussey's, and this was won by Cole, who defeated Jones. The tournament will probably close to-morrow.

Ira Payne, the crack shot, who has been absent in Europe for two years, has returned to his home in Detroit, full of fairy stories of his success. He is going back over "the big drink."

Wallace Ross and Courtney have signed articles to row a three-mile race, course not named, for $2,000.

Garvey, the bicyclist, has just received from Prince his thirty-pound bicycle, upon which he won thirty-seven races and $4,000.

At Narragansett Park, Providence, R. I., yesterday, H. B. Winship and Hiram Bruce and Frank and John Hay trotted the fastest three double-team heats on record, the time being 2:16, 2:10½, 2:11¾.

At Brighton Beach yesterday, Brunswick won the mile dash, Lytton the three-fourths mile for 3-year-olds, Little Dan the one and one-fourth and Rochester the one and one-fourth over six hurdles.

At Pimlico, Baltimore, yesterday, the winners were: Empress in the one and one-eighth mile, Bunch in the seven-eighths mile, and Charlie Gorman in the gentleman's race of half a mile.

At Memphis, Mammonist won the three-fourths mile, Annie G. the two mile dash, Joe Starks the mile and furlong, and Mammonist the mile dash.

Horace B. Phillips of Columbus tells a good story of one of his players, Straub, who watched with some admiration and more trepidation, the growing bulk of Billee Taylor of Pittsburg, under the influence of benzine and malt juices. "Billee," said Straub who speaks with an accent, "uv you dond shtop drinking dot bad viskey, your skin vill crack oben."

Sullivan's Movements.

John L. Sullivan, the champion hitter, and his combination gave their show at Lafayette, Indiana, last night, and will soon be en route for St. Louis. Sullivan, so says his agent, Mr. Al. Smith, was twenty-five years of age a few days since, and now weighs 225 lbs. He is in superb condition lean in the loins and working like a machine. "Why you can hang a hat on his shoulder blades," said Mr. Smith, "so well conditioned is he."

For Sunday's exhibition an excellent picked nine will be pitted against the St. Louis Club, and as most of the latter team will remain in town over that time, there is a good prospect of a very interesting game. Sullivan will pitch for five innings, and will then play third of first base for the remaining four. No seats will be reserved at Sportsman's Park, but a general admission will be charged of 50 cents all round, and the earliest comers will get the choicest places.

Mr. Stone moved that in view of the fact his Honor, the Mayor, had withdrawn the nominations pending before it, the Council adjourn. There being no further business to transact the motion was carried.

STOCKMEN'S GRIEVANCES.

Complaints in the Cattle Trade—Much Dissatisfaction Expressed.

"Are you aware that the live stock business of St. Louis is very seriously threatened with complete extinction?" said a gentleman prominently identified with the trade to a reporter of this paper, whom he met wearily counting ties between the bridge and the National Stock Yards a few days since.

"Well, yes, I have heard something of that kind before. But it appears to me that this is periodical. Is there anything new?"

"Yes; and I think the POST-DISPATCH ought to write this thing up. Live stock dealers have a very serious grievance and St. Louis is slowly but surely losing her prestige as a live stock market. You are well aware that for some time much dissatisfaction has been evinced by commission firms and others doing business at the National Stock Yards at the way things are managed. This dissatisfaction finally became so great that a private meeting of these gentlemen was held a short time previous to the stockholders' meeting, where it was discussed in all its bearings, and a committee appointed to draft a letter of grievance. The most salient points of this letter were that the receiving and shipping of stock had been delayed in transit. Trains arriving via Western roads were allowed to remain in the Union Depot yards for several hours at a time, and when requested to interfere in their interest, the company paid not the least attention, whereas, if the thing had been properly placed before the Bridge superintendent by some one in authority at the yards, this delay of stock would not occur. Another point dwelt upon, and one of vital importance to dealers, was that some of the heaviest stockholders, who are large handlers of cattle, had withdrawn their trade from here, thus hurting the trade most seriously, as it prevented competition. You will remember that this was a great cause for complaint last spring, and a buyer from the East was sent here, but only remained a short time. This letter was read to the board of directors and forwarded to New York, and it must have stirred them up a little. To a certain extent it has had a beneficial effect. Stock is being delivered more promptly, extensive repairs are taking place, and one of the largest cattle slaughterers in the country, who is erecting a mammoth abattoir at New York, is represented by a buyer. There is no doubt that the management has been very derelict in their duties, and live-stock men have had just cause for complaint. The yards have been run with an inadequate force, and until attention was called to them the chutes and landings have been in a dangerous condition. The roof of the main hog house, one of the most extensive buildings of the kind in the country, may be aptly compared to a sieve. The why and wherefore of this neglect upon the part of those seemingly interested is hard to discover. These yards are so situated as to command a large trade, but which is now giving us the go-by. Buyers also have withdrawn to a great extent and there is no competition. Of late good cattle arriving here have received such low bids that consigners have sent them to Chicago, as buyers are plentiful there and no trouble was found in obtaining what they were worth. Some are inclined to think there is a freezing out process going on, and that when certain obnoxious parties have been got rid of, there will be a change for the better. In the meantime the business of the yards is going to the "demnition bow-wows," and Chicago and Kansas City are reaping the benefit, while commission men are thinking very seriously of following their trade to these cities."

The reporter after leaving the gentleman who had expressed himself so freely, made a canvass of the yards and found it very easy to verify what had been told him, the dissatisfaction being if anything greater. A member of one of the largest firms doing business here, while visiting at Kansas City was almost paralyzed at finding a large part of his trade gradually drifting to that market, and in order to get the benefit if possible, it was resolved to start a branch house there in the spring, if they did not decide to locate there altogether.

On the other hand, it is but just to say that others who are presumed to be deeply interested in the success of the yards claim that this grumbling is an annual occurrence when supplies show a depreciation, and that instead of working up their trade as is done in other cities, they sit supinely around their offices and wait for the trade to come to them, and this, they claim, has been the way they have carried on their business ever since the yards were opened. Heavy Eastern shippers were obliged to leave the National Yards, as the arrivals of suitable cattle were not large enough to justify them keeping a buyer here all the time.

CITY HALL NOTES.

Eighteen burial permits were issued this morning.

No new cases of small-pox were reported to-day. Bertha Peters is pronounced to be in a very critical condition.

The rush of applicants for subordinate positions continues unabated, and there is more appearance of life at the City Hall than has been noted within the year.

The Cass Avenue and Fair Grounds Railway Company, this morning, notified the City Register that during the three months ending September 1 the road made 41,020 trips, carrying 590,393 passengers.

Both branches of the Municipal Assembly will meet this evening. In the Council the bonds of all newly appointed officers will be considered, and perhaps acted upon immediately, in order that the officials may qualify and take hold of their offices by next Monday.

Dr. Robt. Luedeking has notified the Health Commissioner, John D. Stevenson, that he will be forced to give up all his time to his private practice and his duties as professor of pathological anatomy at the St. Louis Medical College, and consequently is not a candidate for reëlection as Clerk of the Board of Health.

A WOMAN MISSING.

Mysterious Disappearance of Mrs. Hannah Donegan.

Mrs. Hannah Donegan, a married woman 45 years of age, who lived with her husband, John Donegan, at the southeast corner of Cass avenue and Collins street, has been mysteriously missing since the night of October 19th. Her husband, who is employed at the St. Louis Transfer stables, on Second and Carr streets, has little to say about the matter. He states that he came home from work about 7 p. m. on the evening mentioned. He then noticed that his wife was acting very strangely. She did not seem to be intoxicated, but her conduct generally attracted his attention. After a while his wife got some bed clothes and lay down on the floor. When he came in from the next room, a couple of hours later, he says he found his wife dressing herself and preparing to go out. Soon after, she ran out of the place. Although he followed closely after her, he declares that he could not discover which way she had fled. He then searched the yard, but he has not seen her since. The neighbors state that Mrs. Donegan was quiet and peaceable, but that she seemed to have considerable trouble with her husband. Some of them hint that there may be foul play in the matter. A grocer named Raynor, who lives in the neighborhood, says that one of the missing woman's brothers came down the other day and stated that if Donegan did not tell what he had done with his sister he would fill him full of bullets. Mrs. Donegan has several relatives, none of whom have seen her. One of them, a Mrs. Rafferty, says that Mrs. Donegan came to her house some time ago with both eyes blackened and declared that her husband had beaten her.
